ACT I.

SCENE I.—The Interior of the Temple of Apollo, which is supposed to be placed on a rocky eminence. Early morning. The interior lighted by a single lamp suspended from the roof. AGENOR resting against a column, R.—IRUS seated on a bench at the side of the scene, L.

AGENOR comes forward and speaks, c.

Agenor. Will the dawn never visit us? These hours

Toil heavy with the unresting curse they bear
To do the work of desolating years!
All distant sounds are hush'd;—the shriek of death

And the survivors' wail are now unheard,
As grief had worn itself to patience. Irus!
I'm loth so soon to break thy scanty rest,
But my heart sickens for the tardy morn!
Sure it is breaking;—speed and look—yet hold Know'st thou the fearful shelf of rock that hangs

Above the encroaching waves, the loftiest point
That stretches eastward?

Irus. Know it? Yes, my lord;
There often have I bless'd the opening day,
Which thy free kindness gave me leave to waste
In happy wandering through the forests.

Agenor. Well,
Thou art not then afraid to tread it; there
The earliest streak from the unrisen sun
Is to be welcomed;—tell me how it gleams,
In bloody portent or in saffron hope,
And hasten back to slumber.

Irus. I shall hasten;
Believe not that thy summons broke my rest;
I was not sleeping.

[Exit Irus, L.]

Agenor. Heaven be with thee, child!
His grateful mention of delights bestow'd
On that most piteous state of servile childhood.
By liberal vows chance-dropp'd hath touch'd a vein

Of feeling which I deem'd for ever numb'd
And, by a gush of household memories, breaks
The icy casing of that thick despair
Which day by day hath gather'd o'er my heart
While, basely safe, within this column'd circle,
Uplifted far into the purer air
And by Apollo's partial love secured,
I have, in spirit, glided with the Plague
As in foul darkness or in sickliest light
It watted death through Argos! and mine ears,
Listening athirst for any human sound,
Have caught the dismal cry of confused pain,
Which to this dizzy height the fitful wind
Hath borne from each sad quarter of the vale
Where life was.

Re-enter IRUS, L.

Are there signs of day-break?

Irus. None;

The eastern sky is still unbroken gloom.

Agenor. It cannot surely be. Thine eyes are dim
(No fault of thine) for want of rest, or now
I look upon them near, with scalding tears.
Hath care alighted on a head so young!
What grief hast thou been weeping?

Irus. Pardon me;

I never thought at such a mournful time
To plead my humble sorrow in excuse
Of poorly-render'd service: but my brother—
Thou mayst have noted him,—a sturdy lad,
With eye so merry and with foot so light
That none could chide his gamesomeness—fell sick
But yesterday, and died in my weak arms
Ere I could seek for stouter aid: I hoped
That I had taught my grief to veil its signs
From thy observant care; but when I stood
Upon the well-known terrace where we loved,
Arm link'd in arm, to watch the gleaming sails—
His favourite pastime, for he berr'd to share
A seaman's hardy lot,—my tears would flow,
And I forgot to dry them. But I see
Cleon is walking yonder; let me call him;
For sure 'twill cheer thy heart to speak with him.

Agenor. Call him, good youth, and then go in to sleep,
Or, if thou wilt, to weep.

[Exit Irus, L.]

I envy thee
The privilege, but Jupiter forbend
That I should rob thee of it!

Enter CLEON, L.

Cleon. Hail! Agenor!
Dark as our lot remains, 'tis comfort yet
To find thy age unstricken.

Agenor. Rather mourn
Than I am destined still to linger here
In strange unnatural strength, while death is round me.

I chide these sinews that are framed so tough
Grief cannot palsy them; I chide the air
Which round this citadel of nature breathes
With sweetness not of this world; I would share
The common grave of my dear countrymen,
And sink to rest while all familiar things
Old custom has endear'd are failing with me,
Rather than shiver on in life behind them:
Nor should these walls detain me from the paths
Where death may be embraced, but that my word,
In a rash moment plighted to our host,
Forbids me to depart without his license,
Which firmly he refuses.

Cleon. Do not chide me
If I rejoice to find the generous Priest
Means, with Apollo's blessing, to preserve
The treasure of thy wisdom;—nay, he trusts not
To promises alone; his gates are barr'd
Against thy egress:—none, indeed, may pass them
Save the youth Ion, to whose earnest prayer
His foster-father grants reluctant leave

To visit the sad city at his will :
And freely does he use the dangerous boon,
Which, in my thought, the love that cherish'd him,
Since he was found within the sacred grove
Smiling amidst the storm, a most rare infant,
Should have had sternness to deny.

Agenor. What, Ion
The only inmate of this fane allow'd
To seek the mournful walks where death is busy !—
Ion our sometime darling, whom we prized
As a stray gift, by bounteous Heaven dismiss'd
From some bright sphere which sorrow may not cloud

To make the happy happier ! Is he sent
To grapple with the miseries of this time,
Whose nature such ethereal aspect wears
As it would perish at the touch of wrong ?
By no internal contest is he train'd
For such hard duty ; no emotions rude
Hath his clear spirit vanquish'd ;—Love, the germ
Of his mild nature, hath spread graces forth,
Expanding with its progress, as the store
Of rainbow colour which the seed conceals
Sheds out its tints from its dim treasury,
To flush and circle in the flower. No tear
Hath fill'd his eye save that of thoughtful joy
When, in the evening stillness, lovely things
Press'd on his soul too busily ; his voice,
If, in the earnestness of childish sports,
Raised to the tone of anger, check'd its force,
As if it fear'd to break its being's law,
And falter'd into music ; when the forms
Of guilty passion have been made to live
In pictured speech, and others have wax'd loud
In righteous indignation, he hath heard
With sceptic smile, or from some slender vein
Of goodness, which surrounding gloom conceal'd,
Struck sunlight o'er it : so his life hath flow'd
From its mysterious urn a sacred stream,
In whose calm depth the beautiful and pure
Alone are mirror'd ; which, though shapes of ill
May hover round its surface, glides in light,
And takes no shadow from them.

Cleon. Yet, methinks,
Thou hast not lately met him, or a change
Pass'd strangely on him had not miss'd thy wonder.

His form appears dilated : in those eyes
Where pleasure danced, a thoughtful sadness dwells ;

Stern purpose knits the forehead, which till now
Knew not the passing wrinkle of a care :
Those limbs which in their heedless motion own'd
A stripling's playful happiness, are strung,
As if the iron hardships of the camp
Had given them sturdy nurture ; and his step,
Its airiness of yesterday forgotten,
Awakes the echoes of these desolate courts,
As if a hero of gigantic mould
Paced them in armour.

Agenor. Hope is in thy tale.
This is no freak of Nature's wayward course,
But work of pitying Heaven ; for not in vain
The gods have pour'd into that guileless heart
The strengths that nerve the hero ;—they are ours.

Cleon. How can he aid us ? Can he stay the pulse
Of ebbing life,—arrest the infected winds,
Or smite the hungry spectre of the grave ?

Agenor. And dost thou think these breezes are our foes,—
The innocent airs that used to dance around us,

As if they felt the blessings they convey'd,
Or that the death they bear is casual ? No !
'Tis human guilt that blackens in the cloud,
Flashes athwart its mass in jagged fire,
Whirls in the hurricane, pollutes the air,
Turns all the joyous melodies of earth
To murmurings of doom. There is a foe
Who in the glorious summit of the state
Draws down the great resentment of the gods,
Whom he defies to strike us ; yet his power
Partakes that just infirmity which Nature
Blends in the empire of her proudest sons—
That it is cased within a single breast,
And may be pluck'd thence by a single arm.
Let but that arm, selected by the gods,
Do its great office on the tyrant's life,
And Argos breathes again !

Cleon. A footstep !—hush !
Thy wishes, falling on a slavish ear,
Would tempt another outrage : 'tis a friend—
An honest though a crabbed one—Timocles !
Something hath ruffled him.—Good day, Timocles !
(Timocles passes in front.)

He will not speak to us.

Agenor. But he shall speak.
Timocles—nay, then, thus I must enforce thee ;
(Staying him.)

Sure thou wilt not refuse a comrade's hand
That may be cold ere sunset.

Tim. (Giving his hand.) Thou mayst school me ;
Thy years and love have license : but I own not
A stripling's mastery ; is't fit, Agenor ?

Agenor. Nay, thou must tell thy wrong ; whate'er it prove,

I hail thy anger as a hopeful sign,
For it revives the thought of household days,
When the small bickering of friends had space
To fret, and Death was not for ever nigh
To frown upon Estrangement. What has moved thee ?

Tim. I blush to tell it. Weary of the night
And of my life, I sought the western portal :
It opened, when ascending from the stair
That through the rock winds spiral from the town,
Ion, the founding cherish'd by the Priest,
Stood in the entrance : with such mild command
As he has often smilingly obey'd,
I bade him stand aside and let me pass ;
When—wouldst thou think it ?—in determined speech

He gave me counsel to return ; I press'd
Impatient onward : he, with honied phrase
His daring act excusing, grasp'd my arm
With strength resistless ; led me from the gate ;
Replaced its ponderous bars ; and, with a look
As modest as he wore in childhood, left me.

Agenor. And thou wilt thank him for it soon ; he comes—

Now hold thy angry purpose if thou can'st !

Enter ION, L.

Ion. I seek thee, good Timocles, to implore
Again thy pardon. I am young in trust,
And fear lest, in the earnestness of love,
I stayed thy course too rudely. Thou hast borne
My childish folly often,—do not frown
If I have ventured upon unmanner'd zeal
To guard the ripe experiences of years
From one rash moment's danger.

Tim. Leave thy care.
If I am weary of the flutterer life,
Is mortal bidding thus to cage it in ?

Ion. And art thou tired of being? Has the grave
No terrors for thee? Hast thou sunder'd quite Those thousand meshes which old custom weaves
To bind us earthward, and gay fancy films
With airy lustre various? Hast subdued
Those cleavings of the spirit to its prison,
Those nice regards, dear habits, pensive memories,
That change the valour of the thoughtful breast
To brave dissimulation of its fears?
Is hope quench'd in thy bosom? Thon art free,
And in the simple dignity of man
Standest apart untempted:—do not lose
The great occasion thou hast pluck'd from misery,
Nor play the spendthrift with a great despair,
But use it nobly!

Tim. What, to strike? to slay?

Ion. No!—not unless the audible voice of heaven
Call thee to that dire office; but to shed
On ears abused by falsehood, truths of power
In words immortal,—not such words as flash
From the fierce demagogue's unthinking rage,
To madden for a moment and expire,—
Nor such as the rapt orator imbues—
With warmth of facile sympathy, and moulds
To mirrors radiant with fair images,
To grace the noble fervour of an hour;—
But words which bear the spirits of great deeds
Wing'd for the future; which the dying breath
Of Freedom's martyr shapes as it exhales,
And to the most enduring forms of earth
Commits—to linger in the craggy shade
Of the huge valley, 'neath the eagle's home,
Or in the sea-cave where the tempest sleeps,
Till some heroic leader bid them wake
To thrill the world with echoes!—But I talk
Of things above my grasp, which strangely press
Upon my soul, and tempt me to forget
The duties of my youth;—pray you forgive me.

Tim. Have I not said so?

Agenor. Welcome to the morn!

The eastern gates unfold, the priest approaches;

(As Agenor speaks, the great gates at the back of the scene open; the sea is discovered far beneath,—the dawn breaking over it; MEDON, the priest, enters attended.)

And lo! the sun is struggling with the gloom,
Whose masses fill the eastern sky, and tints
Its edges with dull red;—but he will triumph;
Bless'd be the omen!

Medon. God of light and joy,
Once more delight us with thy healing beams!
If I may trace thy language in the clouds
That wait upon thy rising, help is nigh—
But help achieved in blood.

Ion. Sayst thou in blood?

Medon. Yes, Ion!—why, he sickens at the word,
Spite of his new-born strength;—the sights of woe
That he will seek have shed their paleness on him.
Has this night's walk shown more than common sorrow?

Ion. I pass'd the palace where the frantic king
Yet holds his crimson revel, whence the roar
Of desperate mirth came, mingling with the sigh
Of death-subdued robustness, and the gleam
Of festal lamps mid spectral columns hung Flaunting o'er shapes of anguish made them ghastlier.

How can I cease to tremble for the sad ones
He mocks—and him the wretchedest of all?

Tim. And canst thou pity him? Dost thou discern,

Amidst his impious darings, plea for him?

Ion. Is he not childless, friendless, and a king?
He's human; and some pulse of good must live
Within his nature—have ye tried to wake it?

Medon. Yes; I believe he felt our sufferings once;

When, at my strong entreaty, he dispatch'd
Phocion my son to Delphos, there to seek
Our cause of sorrow; but, as time dragg'd on Without his messenger's return, he grew
Impatient of all counsel,—to his palace
In awful mood retiring, wildly call'd
The reckless of his court to share his stores
And end all with him. When we dared disturb
His dreadful feastings with a humble prayer
That he would meet us, the poor slave, who bore
The message, flew back smarting from the scourge.
And mutter'd a decree that he who next
Unbitten met the tyrant's glance should die.

Agenor. I am prepared to brave it.

Cleon. So am I.

Tim. And I—

Ion. O sages, do not think my prayer
Bespeaks unseemly forwardness—send me!
The coarsest reed that trembles in the marsh,
If Heaven select it for its instrument,
May shed celestial music on the breeze
As clearly as the pipe whose virgin gold
Befits the lips of Phoebus;—ye are wise,
And needed by your country; ye are fathers;
I am a lone stray thing, whose little life
By strangers' bounty cherish'd, like a wave
That from the summer sea a wanton breeze
Lifts for a moment's sparkle, will subside
Light as it rose, nor leave a sigh in breaking.

Medon. Ion, no sigh!

Ion. Forgive me if I seem'd

To doubt that thou wilt mourn me if I fall;
Nor would I tax thy love with such a fear,
But that high promptings, which could never rise

Spontaneous in my nature, bid me plead
Thns boldly for the mission.

Medon. My brave boy!

It shall be as thou wilt. I see thou art call'd
To this great peril, and I will not stay thee.
When wilt thou be prepared to seek it?

Ion. Now.

Only before I go, thus, on my knee,
Let me in one word thank thee for a life
Made by thy love a cloudless holiday;
And O, my more than father! let me look
Up to thy face as if indeed a father's,
And give me a son's blessing.

Medon. Bless thee, son!

I should be marble now; let's part at once.

Ion. If I should not return, bless Phocion from me;

And, for Clemanthe—may I speak one word,
One parting word with my fair playfellow?

Medon. If thou would'st have it so, thou shalt.

Ion. Farewell then!

Your prayers wait on my steps. The arm of Heaven.

I feel in life or death will be around me.

[Exit, L.]

Medon. O grant it be in life! Let's to the sacrifice.

[Exeunt, R.]

SCENE II.—An apartment of the Temple.Enter CLEMANTHE, followed by ABRA, R.Clem. Is he so changed?Abra. His bearing is so alter'd,
That, distant, I scarce knew him for himself;
But, looking in his face, I felt his smile
Gracious as ever, though its sweetness wore
Unwonted sorrow in it.Clem. He will goTo some high fortune, and forget us all,
Reclaim'd (be sure of it) by noble parents;
Me he forgets already; for five days,
Five melancholy days, I have not seen him.Abra. Thou knowest that he has privilege to rangeThe infected city; and, 'tis said, he spends
The hours of needful rest in squalid hovels
Where death is most forsaken.Clem. Why is this?Why should my father, niggard of the lives
Of aged men, be prodigal of youth
So rich in glorious prophecy as his?Abra. He comes to answer for himself. I'll leave you.[Exit R.]Clem. Stay! Well my heart may guard its secret best

By its own strength.

Enter ION, L.Ion. How fares my pensive sister?Clem. How should I fare but ill when the pale handDraws back the foldings of the eternal curtain
Closer and closer round us—Phocion absent—
And thou, forsaking all within thy home,
Wilt risk thy life with strangers, in whose aid
Even thou can'st do but little?Ion. It is little;But in these sharp extremities of fortune,
The blessings which the weak and poor can scatterHave their own season. 'Tis a little thing
To give a cup of water: yet its draught
Of cool refreshment, drain'd by fever'd lips,
May give a shock of pleasure to the frame
More exquisite than when nectarean juice
Renews the life of joy in happiest hours.It is a little thing to speak a phrase
Of common comfort which by daily use
Has almost lost its sense; yet on the ear
Of him who thought to die unmourn'd 'twill fall
Like choicest music; fill the glazing eye
With gentle tears; relax the knotted hand
To know the bonds of fellowship again;
And shed on the departing soul a sense
More precious than the benison of friends
About the honour'd death-bed of the rich,
To him who else were lonely, that another
Of the great family is near and feels.Clem. Oh, thou canst never bear these mournful offices!So blithe, so merry once! Will not the sight
Of frenzied agonies unfix thy reason,
Or the dumb woe congeal thee?Ion. No, Clemanthe;They are the patient sorrows that touch nearest!
If thou had'st seen the warrior when he writhed
In the last grapple of his sinewy frame
With conquering anguish, strive to cast a smile
(And not in vain) upon his fragile wife,Waning beside him,—and, his limbs composed,
The widow of the moment fix her gaze
Of longing, speechless love, upon the babe,
The only living thing which yet was hers,
Spreading its arms for its own resting-place,
Yet with attenuated hand wave off
The unstricken child, and so embraceless die,
Stiffing the mighty hunger of the heart;
Thou couldst endure the sight of selfish grief
In sullenness or frenzy;—but, to-day
Another lot falls on me.Clem. Thou wilt leave us!I read it plainly in thy alter'd mien;—
Is it for ever?Ion. That is with the gods!I go but to the palace, urged by hope,
Which from afar hath darted on my soul,
That to the humbleness of one like me
The haughty king may listen.Clem. To the palace!Knowest thou the peril—nay the certain issue
That waits thee? Death!—The tyrant has decreed it,Confirmed it with an oath; and he has power
To keep that oath; for, hated as he is,
The reckless soldiers who partake his riot
Are swift to do his bidding.Ion. I know all;But they who call me to the work can shield me,
Or make me strong to suffer.Clem. Then the swordFalls on thy neck! O Gods! to think that thou,
Who in the plenitude of youthful life
Art now before me, ere the sun decline,
Perhaps in one short hour shalt lie cold, cold,
To speak, smile, bless no more!—Thou shalt not go!Ion. Thou must not stay me, fair one; even thy father,Who (blessings on him!) loves me as his son,
Yields to the will of Heaven.Clem. And he can do this!I shall not bear his presence if thou faltest
By his consent; So shall I be alone.Ion. Phocion will soon return, and juster thoughtsOf thy admiring father close the gap
Thy old companion left behind him*Clem.* Never!What will to me be father, brother, friends,
When thou art gone—the light of our life quench'd—
Haunting like spectres of departed joy
The home where thou wert dearest?Ion. Thrill me notWith words that, in their agony, suggest
A hope too ravishing,—or my head will swim,
And my heart faint within me.Clem. Has my speechSuch blessed power? I will not mourn it then,
Though it hath told a secret I had borne
Till death in silence:—how affection grew
To this, I know not;—day succeeded day,
Each fraught with the same innocent delights,
Without one shock to ruffle the disguise
Of sisterly regard which veil'd it well,
Till thy changed mien reveal'd it to my soul,
And thy great peril makes me bold to tell it.
Do not despise it in me!Ion. With deep joyThus I receive it. Trust me, it is long Since I have learn'd to tremble midst our pleasures,
Lest I should break the golden dream around me

With most ungrateful rashness. I should bless
The sharp and perilous duty which hath press'd
A life's deliciousness into these moments,—
Which here must end. I came to say farewell,
And the word must be said.

Clem. Thou canst not mean it!
Have I disclaim'd all maiden bashfulness,
To tell the cherish'd secret of my soul
To my soul's master, and in rich return
Obtain'd the dear assurance of his love,
To hear him speak that miserable word
I cannot—will not echo?

Ion. Heaven has call'd me.
And I have pledged my honour. When thy heart
Bestow'd its preference on a friendless boy,
Thou didst not image him a recreant; nor Must he prove so, by thy election crown'd.
Thou hast endowed me with a right to claim
Thy help through this our journey, be its course
Lengthen'd to age, or in an hour to end;
And now I ask it!—bid my courage hold,
And with thy free approval send me forth
In soul apparell'd for my office!

Clem. Go!
I would not have thee other than thou art,
Living or dying—and if thou shouldst fall—

Ion. Be sure I shall return.

Clem. If thou should'st fall,
I shall be happier as the affianced bride
Of thy cold ashes, than in proudest fortunes—
Thine—ever thine— (She faints in his arms.)

Ion. (Calls.) Abra!—So best to part—

Enter ABRA, with Attendant, R.

Let her have air; be near her through the day;
I know thy tenderness—should ill news come
Of any friend, she will require it all.

(Abra bears Clemanthe out, R.)
Ye Gods, that have enrich'd the life ye claim
With priceless treasure, strengthen me to yield it!
(Exit, L.)

END OF ACT I.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—A Terrace of the Palace.

Enter ADRASTUS, CRYTHES, and Guards, from the Terrace, C.

Adras. The air breathes freshly after our long night
Of glorious revelry. I'll walk awhile.

Crythes. It blows across the town; dost thou not fear

It bear infection with it?

Adras. Fear! dost talk
Of fear to me? I deem'd even thy poor thoughts
Had better scann'd their master. Prithce tell me
In what act, word, or look, since I have borne Thy converse here, hast thou discern'd such base-

ness
As makes thee bold to prate to me of fear?

Crythes. My liege, of human might all know thee fearless,

But may not heroes shun the elements
When sickness taints them?

Adras. Let them blast me now!—
I stir not; tremble not; these massive walls,
Whose date o'erawes tradition, gird the home
Of a great race of kings, along whose line

The eager mind lives aching, through the darkness

Of ages else unstoried, till its shapes
Of armed sovereigns spread to godlike port,
And, frowning in the uncertain dawn of time,
Strike awe, as powers who ruled an elder world,
In mute obedience. I, sad heritor
Of all their glories, feel our doom is nigh:
And I will meet it as befits their fame;
Nor will I vary my selected path
The breadth of my sword's edge, nor check a wish,

If such unkingly yielding might avert it.

Crythes. Thou art ever royal in thy thoughts.

Adras. No more—

I would be private.

[Exit Crythes, with guards, C.]

Grovelling parasite!

Why should I waste these fat-environ'd hours,
And pledge my great defiance to despair
With flatterers such as thou;—as if my joys
Required the pale reflections cast by slaves
In mirror'd mockery round my throne, or lack'd
The aid of reptile sympathies to stream
Through fate's black pageantry? Let weakness seek

Enter a Soldier, R.

Sol. My liege, forgive me.

Adras. Well! Speak out at once
Thy business, and retire.

Sol. I have no part
In the presumptuous message that I bear.

Adras. Tell it, or go. There is no time to waste
On idle terrors.

Sol. Thus it is, my lord:—
As we were burnishing our arms, a man
Enter'd the court, and when we saw him first
Was tending towards the palace; in amaze,
We hail'd the rash intruder; still he walk'd
Unheeding onward, till the western gate
Barr'd further course; then, turning, he besought

Our startled band to herald him to thee,
That he might urge a message which the sages
Had charged him to deliver.

Adras. Ha! the greybeards
Who, mid the altars of the gods, conspire
To cast the image of supernal power
From earth its shadow consecrates. What sage
Is so resolved to play the orator
That he would die for 't?

Sol. He is but a youth,
Yet urged his prayer with a sad constancy
Which could not be denied.

Adras. Most bravely plann'd!
Sedition worthy of the reverend host
Of sophist traitors; brave to scatter fancies
Of discontent 'midst sturdy artisans,
Whose honest sinews they direct unseeen,
And make their proxies in the work of peril!—
'Tis fit, when burning to insult their king,
And warn'd the pleasure must be bought with life,
Their valour send a boy to speak their wisdom!
Thou know'st my last decree; tell this rash youth
The danger he incurs;—then let him pass,
And own the king more gentle than his masters.

Sol. We have already told him of the fate
Which waits his daring; courteously he thank'd us,

But still with solemn accent urged his suit.

Adras. Tell him once more, if he persists, he dies—

Then, if he will, admit him. Should he hold
His purpose, order Crythes to conduct him,
And see the headsman instantly prepare
To do his office.

[Exit Soldier, r.]

So resolved, so young—

'Twere pity he should fall; yet he must fall,
Or the great sceptre, which hath sway'd the fears
Of ages, will become a common staff
For youth to wield or age to rest upon,
Despoil'd of all its virtues. He must fall,
Else they who prompt the insult will grow bold,
And with their pestilent vauntings through the city

Raise the low fog of murky discontent,
Which now creeps harmless through its marshy birthplace,

To veil my setting glories. He is warn'd;
And if he cross yon threshold, he shall die.

Enter CRYTHES and ION, r.

Crythes. The king!

Adras. Stranger, I bid thee welcome;
We are about to tread the same dark passage,
Thou almost on the instant.—Is the sword

(To Crythes.)

Of justice sharpen'd, and the headsman ready?

Crythes. Thou may'st behold them plainly in the court;

Even now the solemn soldiers line the ground,
The steel gleams on the altar; and the slave
Disrobes himself for duty.

Adras. (To Ion.) Dost thou see them?

Ion. I do.

Adras. By Heaven, he does not change!
If, even now, thou wilt depart and leave
Thy traitorous thoughts unspeken, thou art free.

Ion. I thank thee for thy offer; but I stand
Before thee for the lives of thousands, rich
In all that makes life precious to the brave;
Who perish not alone, but in their fall
Break the far-spreading tendrils that they feed,
And leave them nurtureless. If thou wilt hear me

For them, I am content to speak no more.

Adras. Then hast thy wish then. Crythes! till you dial

Cast its thin shadow on the approaching hour,
I hear this gallant traitor. On the instant,
Come without word, and lead him to his doom.
Now leave us.

Crythes. What, alone?

Adras. Yes, slave! alone.

He is no assassin!

[Exit Crythes, r.]

Tell me who thou art.

What generous source owns that heroic blood,
Which holds its course thus bravely? What great wars

Have nursed the courage that can look on death,
Certain and speedy death, with placid eye?

Ion. I am a simple youth, who never bore
The weight of armour,—one who may not boast
Of noble birth or valour of his own.

Deem not the powers which nerve me thus to speak

In thy great presence, and have made my heart
Upon the verge of bloody death as calm,
As equal in its beatings, as when sleep
Approach'd me nestling from the sportive toils

Of thoughtless childhood, and celestial dreams
Began to glimmer through the deepening shadows
Of soft oblivion, to belong to me!—

These are the strengths of Heaven; to thee they speak,

Bid thee to hearken to thy people's cry,
Or warn thee that thy hour must shortly come!

Adras. I know it must; so may'st thou spare thy warnings.

The envious gods in me have doom'd a race,
Whose glories stream from the same cloud-girt founts,

Whence their own dawn'd upon the infant world;
And I shall sit on my ancestral throne
To meet their vengeance; but till then I rule
As I have ever ruled, and thou wilt feel.

Ion. I will not further urge thy safety to thee;
It may be, as thou say'st, too late; nor seek
To make thee tremble at the gathering curse
Which shall burst forth in mockery at thy fall;
But thou art gifted with a nobler sense—
I know thou art, my sovereign!—sense of pain
Endured by myriad Argives, in whose souls,
And in whose fathers' souls, thou and thy fathers

Have kept their cherish'd state; whose heartstrings, still

The living fibres of thy rooted power,
Quiver with agonies thy crimes have drawn
From heavenly justice on them.

Adras. How! my crimes?

Ion. Yes; 'tis the eternal law, that where guilt is,

Sorrow shall answer it; and thou hast not

A poor man's privilege to bear alone,
Or in the narrow circle of his kinsmen

The penalties of evil, for in thine
A nation's fate lies circled.—King Adrastus!

Steel'd as thy heart is with the usages
Of pomp and power, a few short summers since
Thou wert a child, and canst not be relentless.
Oh, if maternal love embraced thee then,

Think of the mothers who with eyes unwet
Glare o'er their perishing children; hast thou shared

The glow of a first friendship, which is born
Midst the rude sports of boyhood, think of youth
Smitten amidst its playthings,—let the spirit
Of thy own innocent childhood whisper pity!

Adras. In every word thou dost but steal my soul.

My youth was blasted;—parents, brother, kin—
All that should people infancy with joy—
Conspired to poison mine; despoiled my life
Of innocence and hope—all but the sword
And sceptre—dost thou wonder at me now?

Ion. I knew that we should pity—

Adras. Pity! dare

To speak that word again, and torture waits
thee!

I am yet king of Argos. Well, go on—
Thy time is short, and I am pledged to hear.

Ion. If thou hast ever loved—

Adras. Beware! beware!

Ion. Thou hast! I see thou hast! Thou art not marble,

And thou shalt hear me!—Think upon the time
When the clear depths of thy yet lucid soul
Were ruffled with the trappings of strange joy,
As if some unseen visitant from heaven
Touch'd the calm lake and wreath'd its images
In sparkling waves;—recall the dallying hope

That on the margin of assurance trembled,
As loth to lose in certainty too bless'd
Its happy being;—taste in thought again
Of the stolen sweetness of those evening walks,
When panted turf was air to winged feet,
And circling forests, by ethereal touch
Enchanted, wore the livery of the sky,
As if about to melt in golden light
Shapes of one heavenly vision; and thy heart,
Enlarged by its new sympathy with one,
Grew beautiful to all!

Adras. That tone! that tone!
Whence came it? from thy lips? It cannot be—

The long-hushed music of the only voice
That ever spake unbought affection to me,
And waked my soul to blessing!—O sweet hours
Of golden joy, ye come! your glories break
Through my pavilion'd spirit's sable folds!
Roll on! roll on!—Stranger, thou dost enforce me

To speak of things unbreathed by lip of mine
To human ear;—wilt listen?

Ion. As a child.

Adras. Again!—that voice again!—thou hast seen me moved
As never mortal saw me, by a tone
Which some light breeze, enamour'd of the sound,

Hath wafted through the woods, till thy young voice

Caught it to rive and melt me. At my birth
This city, which, expectant of its Prince,
Lay hush'd, broke out in clamorous ecstasies;
Yet, in that moment, while the uplifted cups
Foam'd with the choicest product of the sun,
And welcome thunder'd from a thousand throats,
My doom was seal'd. From the hearth's vacant space,

In the dark chamber where my mother lay,
Faint with the sense of pain-bought happiness,
Came forth, in heart-appalling tone, these words
Of me the nursing—"Woe unto the babe!
"Against the life which now begins shall life,
"Lighted from thence, be arm'd, and, both soon quench'd,

"End this great line in sorrow!"—Ere I grew
Of years to know myself a thing accursed,
A second son was born, to steal the love
Which fate had else scarce rifed; he became
My parent's hope, the darling of the crew
Who lived upon their smiles, and thought it flattery

To trace in every foible of my youth—
A prince's youth!—the workings of the curse;
My very mother—Jove! I cannot bear
To speak it now—look'd freezingly upon me!

Ion. But thy brother—

Adras. Died. Thou hast heard the lie,
The common lie that every peasant tells
Of me his master,—that I slew the boy.
'Tis false! One summer's eve, below a crag
Which, in his wilful mood, he strove to climb,
He lay a mangled corpse; the very slaves,
Whose cruelty had shut him from my heart,
Now coin'd their own injustice into proofs
To brand me as his murderer.

Ion. Did they dare accuse thee?

Adras. Not in open speech:—they felt
I should have seized the miscreant by the throat,
And crush'd the lie half-spoken with the life

Of the base speaker;—but the tale look'd out
From the stolen gaze of coward eyes, which shrank

When mine have met them; murmured through the crowd

That at the sacrifice, or feast, or game,
Stood distant from me; burnt into my soul
When I beheld it in my father's shudder!

Ion. Did'st not declare thy innocence?

Adras. To whom?

To parents who could doubt me? To the ring
Of grave impostors, or their shallow sons,
Who should have studied to prevent my wish
Before it grew to language; hail'd my choice
To service as a prize to wrestle for;
And whose reluctant courtesy I bore,
Pale with proud anger, till from lips compress'd
The blood has started? To the common herd,
The vassals of our ancient house, the mass
Of bones and muscles framed to till the soil
A few brief years, then rot unnamed beneath it,
Or, deck'd for slaughter at their master's call
To smite and to be smitten, and lie crush'd
In heaps to swell his glory or his shame?

Answer to them: No! though my heart had burst,
As it was nigh to bursting!—To the mountains
I fled, and on their pinnacles of snow
Breasted the icy wind, in hope to cool
My spirit's fever—struggled with the oak
In search of weariness, and learn'd to rive
Its stubborn boughs, till limbs once lightly strung
Might mate in cordage with its infant stems;
Or on the sea-beat rock tore off the vest
Which burnt upon my bosom, and to air
Headlong committed, clove the water's depth
Which plummet never sounded;—but in vain.

Ion. Yet succour came to thee?

Adras. A blessed one!

Which the strange magic of thy voice revives,
And thus unlocks my soul. My rapid steps
Were in a wood-encircled valley stay'd
By the bright vision of a maid, whose face
Most lovely more than loveliness reveal'd,
In touch of patient grief, which dearer seem'd
Than happiness to spirit seared like mine.
With feeble hands she strove to lay in earth
The body of her aged sire, whose death
And soon too lonely ones by holy rites
Become one happy being. Days, weeks, months,
In streamlike unity flow'd silent by us
In our delightful nest. My father's spies—Slaves, whom my nod should have consign'd to stripes

Or the swift falchion,—tracked our sylvan home.
Just as my bosom knew its second joy,
And, spite of fortune, I embraced a son.

Ion. Urged by thy trembling parents to avert
That dreadful prophecy?

Adras. Fools! did they deem

Its worst accomplishment could match the ill
Which they wrought on me? It had left unharm'd
A thousand ecstasies of passion'd years,
Which, tasted once, live ever, and disdain
Fate's iron grapple! Could I now behold
That son with knife uplifted at my heart,
A moment ere my life-blood follow'd it,
I would embrace him with my dying eyes,
And pardon destiny! While jocund smiles
Wreathed on the infant's face, as if sweet spirits
Suggested pleasant fancies to its soul,
The rufians broke upon us; seized the child;

Dash'd through the thicket to the beetling rock
 'Neath which the deep wave eddies: I stood still
 As stricken into stone: I heard him cry,
 Press'd by the rudeness of the murderer's gripe,
 Severer ill unfearing—then the splash
 Of waters that shall cover him for ever;
 And could not stir to save him!

Ion. And the mother—

Adras. She spake no word, but clasp'd me in her arms,

And lay her down to die. A lingering gaze
 Of love she fixed on me—none other loved,
 And so pass'd hence. By Jupiter, her look!
 Her dying patience glimmers in thy face!
 She lives again; She looks upon me now!
 There's magic in't. Bear with me—I am childish.

Enter CRYTHES and guards, R.

Adras. Why art thou here?

Crythes. The dial points the hour.

Adras. Dost thou not see that horrid purpose pass'd?

Hast thou no heart—no sense?

Crythes. Scarce half an hour

Hath flown since the command on which I wait.

Adras. Scarce half an hour!—years—years have roll'd since then.

Begone! remove that pageantry of death—
 It blasts my sight—and hearken! Touch a hair
 Of this brave youth, or look on him as now.
 With thy cold headsmen's eye, and yonder band
 Shall not expect a fearful show in vain.
 Hence, without word.

[Exit Crythes, R.]

What would'st thou have me do?

Ion. Let thy awaken'd heart speak its own language;

Convene thy Sages;—frankly, nobly meet them;
 Explore with them the pleasure of the gods,
 And, whatso'er the sacrifice, perform it.

Adras. Well! I will seek their presence in an hour;

Go summon them, young hero: hold! no word
 Of the strange passion thou hast witness'd here.

Ion. Distrust me not.—Benignant Powers, I thank ye!

[Exit, R.]

Adras. Yet stay—he's gone—his spell is on me yet;

What have I promised him! To meet the men.
 Who from my living head would strip the crown
 And sit in judgment on me?—I must do it—
 Yet shall my hand be ready to o'erawe
 The course of liberal speech, and, if it rise
 So as too loudly to offend my ear,
 Strike the rash brawler dead!—What idle dream
 Of long-past days had melted me? It fades—
 It vanishes—I am again a king!

SCENE II.—The Interior of the Temple.—(Same as Act I. Scene I.)

CLEMANTHE seated—ABRA attending her.

Abra. Look, dearest lady!—the thin smoke aspires

In the calm air, as when in happier times
 It show'd the gods propitious; wilt thou seek Thy chamber, lest thy father and his friends,
 Returning, find us hinderers of their council?
 She answers not—she hearkens not—with joy
 Could I believe her, for the first time, sullen!
 Still she is rapt.

O speak to my sweet mistress;
 Haply thy voice may rouse her.

Agenor. Dear Clemanthe,
 Hope dawns in every omen; we shall hail
 Our tranquil hours again.

Enter MEDON, CLEON, TIMOCLES, and others, L.

Medon. Clemanthe here!
 How sad! how pale!

Abra. Her eye is kindling—hush!

Cleon. Hark! hear ye not a distant footstep?

Medon. No.

Look round, my fairest child; thy friends are near thee.

Clem. Yes!—now 'tis lost—'tis on that endless stair—

Nearer and more distinct—'tis his—'tis his—

He lives! he comes!

(Clemanthe rises and rushes to the back of the stage, at which Ion appears, c. and returns with her, c.)

Here is your messenger,

Whom Heaven has rescued from the tyrant's rage

Ye sent him forth to brave. Rejoice, old men,
 That ye are guiltless of his blood!—why pause ye?
 Why shout ye not his welcome?

Medon. Dearest girl,

This is no scene for thee; go to thy chamber;
 I'll come to thee ere long.

[Exeunt Clemanthe and Abra.]

She is o'erwrought

By fear and joy for one whose infant hopes
 Were mingled with her own, even as a brother's

Tim. Ion!

How shall we do thee honour?

Ion. None is due

Save to the gods whose gracious influence aways

The king ye deem'd relentless;—he consents

To meet ye presently in council;—speed;

This may be nature's latest rally in him,

In fitful strength, ere it be quench'd for ever!

Medon. Haste to your seats; I will but speak a word

With our brave friend, and follow: though couvened

In speed, let our assembly lack no forms
 Of due observance, which to furious power
 Plead with the silent emphasis of years.

[Exeunt all but Medon and Ion, L.]

Ion, draw near me; this eventful day

Hath shown thy nature's graces circle round

With firmness which accomplishes the hero;—

And it would bring to me but one proud thought—

That virtues which required not culture's aid

Shed their first fragrance 'neath my roof, and there

Found shelter;—but it also hath reveal'd

What I may not hide from thee, that my child,

My blithe and innocent girl—more fair in soul,

More delicate in fancy than in mould—

Loves thee with other than a sister's love.

I should have cared for this: I vainly deem'd

A fellowship in childhood's thousand joys

And household memories had nurtured friendship

Which might hold blameless empire in the soul;

But in that guise the traitor hath stolen in,

And the fair citadel is thine.

Ion. 'Tis true.

I did not think the nurseling of thy house
 Could thus disturb its holiest inmate's duty

With tale of selfish passion ;—but we met
As playmates who might never meet again,
And then the hidden truth flash'd forth, and show'd

To each the image in the other's soul
In one bright instant.

Medon. Be that instant blest
Which made thee truly ours. My son ! my son !
'Tis we should feel uplifted, for the seal
Of greatness is upon thee ; yet I know
That when the gods, won by thy virtues, draw
The veil which now conceals their lofty birthplace,
Thou wilt not spurn the maid who prized them lowly.

Ion. Spurn her ! My father !

Enter CTESIPHON, c.

Medon. Ctesiphon !—and breathless—
Art come to chide me to the council ?

(Crosses to c.)

Ctes. No ;
To bring unwonted joy ; thy son approaches.

Medon. Thank Heaven ! Hast spoken with him ?
Is he well ?

Ctes. I strove in vain to reach him, for the crowd, Roused from the untended couch and dismal hearth
By the strange visiting of hope, press'd round him !

But, by his head erect and fiery glance,
I know that he is well, and that he bears
A message which shall shake the tyrant. (Shouts without.) See !

The throng is tending this way—now it parts,
And yields him to thy arms.

Medon. Welcome, my Phocion—
Long waited for in Argos ; how detain'd
Now matters not, since thou art here in joy.
Hast brought the answer of the god ?

Pho. I have :
Now let Adrastus tremble !

Medon. May we hear it ?

Pho. I am sworn first to utter it to him.

Ctes. But it is fatal to him !—Say but that !

Pho. Ha, Ctesiphon !—I mark'd thee not before ;
How fares thy father ?

Ion. (To Phocion.) Do not speak of him.

Ctes. (Overhearing Ion.) Not speak of him. Dost think there is a moment
When common things eclipse the burning thought

Of him and vengeance ?

Pho. Has the tyrant's sword—

Ctes. No, Phocion ; that were merciful and brave,

Compared to his base deed ; yet will I tell it
To make the flashing of thine eye more deadly,
And edge thy words that they may rive his heartstrings.

The last time that Adrastus dared to face
The Sages of the state, although my father,
Yielding to nature's mild decay, had left
All worldly toil and hope, he gathered strength,
In his old seat, to speak one word of warning.
Thou know'st how bland with years his wisdom grew

And with what phrases, steep'd in love, he sheath'd

The sharpness of rebuke ; yet, ere his speech

Was closed, the tyrant started from his throne,
And with his base hand smote him ;—'twas his death-stroke !

The old man totter'd home, and only once Raised his head after.

Pho. Thou wert absent ? Yes !

The royal miscreant lives !

Ctes. Had I beheld

That sacrilege, the tyrant had lain dead,
Or I had been torn piecemeal by his minions.

But I was far away ; when I return'd,
I found my father on the nearest bench
Within our door, his thinly-silver'd head
Support by wan hands, which hid his face
And would not be withdrawn ;—no groan, no sigh

Was audible, and we might only learn
By short convulsive tremblings of his frame
That life still flicker'd in it—yet at last,
By some unearthly inspiration roused,
He dropp'd his wither'd hands, and sat erect
As in his manhood's glory—the free blood
Flash'd crimson through his cheeks, his furrow'd brow

Expanded clear, and his eyes opening full
Gleam'd with a youthful fire ;—I fell in awe
Upon my knees before him—still he spake not,
But slowly raised his arm untrembling ; clench'd
His hand as if it grasp'd an airy knife,
And struck in air ; my hand was joined with his
In nervous grasp—my lifted eye met his
In steadfast gaze—my pressure answer'd his—
We knew at once each other's thought ; a smile
Of the old sweetness play'd upon his lips,
And life forsook him. Weaponless I flew
To seek the tyrant, and was driven with scoffs
From the proud gates which shelter him. He lives—

And I am here to babble of revenge !

Pho. It comes, my friend—haste with me to the king !

Ion. Even while we speak, Adrastus meets his council ;

There let us seek him ; should ye find him
touch'd

With penitence, as happily ye may,
O give allowance to his soften'd nature !

Ctes. Show grace to him !—Dost dare ?—I had forgot,

Thou dost not know how a son loves a father !

Ion. I know enough to feel for thee ; I know
Thou hast endured the vilest wrong that tyranny
In its worst frenzy can inflict ;—yet think,
O think ! before the irrevocable deed
Shuts out all thought, how much of power's excess

Is theirs who raise the idol :—do we groan
Beneath the personal force of this rash man.
Who forty summers since hung at the breast
A playful weakling ; whom the heat unnerves,
The north wind pierces ; and the hand of death
May, in a moment, change to clay as vile
As that of the scourged slave whose chains it severs ?

No ! 'tis our weakness gasping, or the shows
Of outward strength that builds up tyranny,
And makes it look so glorious :—If we shrink
Faint-hearted from the reckoning of our spau
Of mortal days, we pamper the fond wish
For long duration in a line of kings ;
If the rich pageantry of thoughts must fade
All unsubstantial as the regal hues

Of eve which purpled them, our cunning frailty
Must robe a living image with their pomp,
And wreath a diadem around its brow
In which our sunny fantasies may live
Empearl'd, and gleam, in fatal splendour, far
On after ages. We must look within
For that which makes us slaves ;—on sympathies
Which find no kindred objects in the plain
Of common life—affections that aspire
In air too thin—and fancy's dewy film
Floating for rest ; for even such delicate threads,
Gather'd by Fate's engrossing hand, supply
The eternal spindle whence she weaves the bond
Of cable strength in which our nature struggles !
Ctes. Go talk to others, if thou wilt ;—to me
All argument, save that of steel, is idle.

Medon. No more ;—let's to the council—there,
my son,
Tell thy great message nobly ;—and for thee,
Poor orphan'd youth, be sure the gods are just !
[Exeunt, L.]

SCENE III.—The great Square of the City. Adrastus seated on a throne : Agenor, Timocles, Cleon, and others, seated as Councillors—Soldiers line the stage at a distance.

Adrastus. Upon your summons, Sages, I am here ;
Your king attends to know your pleasure ; speak it !

Agenor. And can'st thou ask ? If the heart dead within thee

Receives no impress of this awful time,
Art thou of sense forsaken ? Are thine ears
So charm'd by strains of slavish minstrelsy
That the dull groan and frenzy-pointed shriek
Pass them unheard to Heaven ? Or are thine eyes
So conversant with prodigies of grief,
They cease to dazzle at them ? Art thou arm'd
'Gainst wonder, while, in all things, Nature turns
To dreadful contraries ;—while Youth's full cheek
Is shrivel'd into furrows of sad years,
And 'neath its glossy curls nutting'd by care
Looks out a keen anatomy ;—while Age
Is stung by feverish torture for an hour
Into youth's strength ; while fragile Womanhood
Starts into frightful courage, all unlike
The gentle strength its gentle weakness feeds
To make affliction beautiful, and stalks
Abroad, a tearless, an unshuddering thing ;—
While Childhood, in its orphan'd freedom blithe, Finds, in the shapes of wretchedness which seem Grotesque to its unsadden'd vision, cause
For dreadful mirth that shortly shall be hush'd
In never-broken silence ; and while Love,
Immortal through all change, makes ghastly Death
Its idol, and with furious passion digs
Amid sepulchral images for gands
To cheat its fancy with ?—Do sights like these Glare through the realm thou shouldst be parent to,

And can'st thou find the voice to ask "our pleasure ?"

Adrastus. Cease, babbler ;—wherefore would ye stun my ears

With vain recital of the griefs I know,
And cannot heal ?—will treason turn aside
The shafts of fate, or medicine Nature's ills ?
I have no skill in pharmacy, nor power
To sway the elements.

Agenor. Thou hast the power
To cast thyself upon the earth with us
In penitential shame ; or, if this power

Hath left a heart made weak by luxury
And hard by pride, thou hast at least the power
To cease the mockery of thy frantic revels.

Adrastus. I have yet power to punish insult—look
I use it not, Agenor !—Fate may dash
My sceptre from me, but shall not command
My will to hold it with a feebler grasp ;
Nay, if few hours of empire yet are mine,
They shall be colour'd with a sterner pride,
And peopled with more lustrous joys than flush'd.
In the serene procession of its greatness,
Which look'd perpetual, as the flowing course
Of human things. Have ye yet beheld a pine
That clasp'd the mountain-summit with a root
As firm as its rough marble, and, apart
From the huge shade of undistinguish'd trees,
Lifted its head as in delight to share
The evening glories of the sky, and taste
The wanton dalliance of the heavenly breeze
That no ignoble vapour from the vale
Could mingle with—smite by the flaming marl,
And lighted for destruction ? How it stood
One glorious moment, fringed and wreathed with fire

Which show'd the inward graces of its shape,
Uncumber'd now, and midst its topmost boughs,
That young Ambition's airy fancy, made
Their giddy nest, leap'd sportive ;—never clad
By liberal summer in a pomp so rich
As waited on its downfall, while it took
The storm-cloud roll'd behind it for a curtain
To gird its splendours round, and made the blast
Its minister to whirl its flashing shreds
Aloft towards heaven, or to the startled depths
Of forests that afar might share its doom !
So shall the royalty of Argos pass
In festal blaze to darkness ! Have ye spoken ?
Agenor. I speak no more to thee !—Great Jove, look down !

(Shouting without.)

Adrastus. What factious brawl is this ?—disperse it, soldiers.

(Shouting renewed—As some of the soldiers are about to march, Phocion rushes in, followed by Ctesiphon, Ion, and Medon.)

Whence is this insolent intrusion ?

Pho. King !

I bear Apollo's answer to thy prayer.

Adrastus. Has not thy travel taught thy knee its duty ?

Here we had school'd thee better.

Pho. Kneel to thee !

Medon. Patience, my son ! Do homage to the king.

Pho. Never !—thou talk'st of schooling—know,
Adrastus,

That I have studied in a nobler school
Than the dull haunt of venal sophistry
Or the lewd guard-room ;—o'er which ancient heaven

Extends its arch for all, and mocks the span
Of palaces and dungeons ; where the heart
In its free beatings, 'neath the coarsest vest,
Claims kindred with diviner things than power
Of kings can raise or stifle—in the school
Of mighty nature—where I learn'd to blush
At sight like this, of thousands basely hush'd
Before a man no mightier than themselves,
Save in the absence of that love that softens.

Adrastus. Peace ! speak thy message.

Pho. Shall I tell it here ?

Or shall I seek thy couch at dead of night,
And breathe it in low whispers?—As thou wilt.

Adras. Here—and this instant!
Pho. Hearken then, Adrastus,
And hearken, Argives—thus Apollo speaks:—
(reads a scroll.)

“Argos ne’er shall find release
“Till her monarch’s race shall cease.”

Adras. ‘Tis not God’s will, but man’s seditious speaks:—
Guards! tear that lying parchment from his hands,

And bear him to the palace.
Medon. Touch him not,—
He is Apollo’s messenger, whose lips
Were never stain’d with falsehood.

Pho. Come on, all!
Agenor. Surround him, friends! Die with him!
Adras. Soldiers, charge
Upon these rebels; hew them down. On, on!

(The soldiers advance and surround the people; they seize Phocion. Ion rushes from the back of the stage, and throws himself between Adrastus and Phocion.)

Pho. (To Adrastus.) Yet I defy thee.

Ion. (To Phocion.) Friend! for sake of all,
Enrage him not—wait while I speak a word—
(To Adrastus.) My sovereign, I implore thee, do not stain
This sacred place with blood; in Heaven’s great name

I do conjure thee—and in hers, whose spirit
Is mourning for thee now!

Adras. Release the stripling—
Let him go spread his treason where he will:
He is not worth my anger. To the palace!

Ion. Nay, yet an instant!—let my speech have power
From Heaven to move thee further: thou hast heard

The sentence of the god, and thy heart owns it;
If thou wilt cast aside this cumbrous pomp,
And in seclusion purify thy soul
Long fever’d and sophisticate, the gods
May give thee space for penitential thoughts:
If not—as surely as thou standest here,
Wilt thou lie stiff and weltering in thy blood.—
The vision presses on me now.

Adras. Art mad?

Resign thy state? Sue to the gods for life,
The common life which every slave endures,
And meanly clings to? No; within yon walls
I shall resume the banquet, never more
Forewarn’d by man’s intrusion. Councillors,
Farewell!—go mutter treason till ye perish!

(Exeunt Adrastus, Crythes, and Soldiers, L.)

Ion. (Who stands apart leaning on a pedestal.) ‘Tis sealed!

Medon. Let us withdraw, and strive
By sacrifice to pacify the gods!

(*Medon, Agenor, and Councillors retire: they leave Ctesiphon, Phocion, and
Ion. Ion still stands apart, as wrapt in meditation.*)

Ctes. ‘Tis well; the measure of his guilt is fill’d
Where shall we meet at sunset?

Pho. In the grove,
Which with its matted shade imbrowns the vale,
Between those buttresses of rock that guard
The sacred mountain on its western side,
Stands a rude altar—overgrown with moss,

And stain’d with drippings of a million showers,
So old that no tradition names the power
That hallow’d it,—which we will consecrate
Anew to freedom and to justice.

Ctes. Thither

Will I bring friends to meet thee. Shall we speak
To you rapt youth? (Pointing to Ion.)

Pho. His nature is too gentle.

At sunset we will meet.—With arms?

Ctes. A knife—

One sacrificial knife will serve.

Pho. At sunset!

(Exeunt Ctesiphon, R., and Phocion, C. L.
ION comes forward.)

Ion. Oh wretched man, thy words have seal’d thy doom!

Why should I shiver at it, when no way,
Save this, remains to break the ponderous cloud
That hangs above my wretched country?—death—
A single death, the common lot of all,
Which it will not be mine to look upon,—
And yet its ghastly shape dilates before me;
I cannot shut it out; my thoughts grow rigid,
And as that grim and prostrate figure haunts them,

My sinews stiffen like it. Courage, Ion!
No spectral form is here; all outward things
Wear their own old familiar looks; no dye
Pollutes them. Yet the air has scent of blood,
And now it eddies with a hurdling sound,
As if some weapon swiftly clove it. No—
The falchion’s course is silent as the grave
That yawns before its victim. Gracious powers!
If the great duty of my life be near,
Grant it may be to suffer, not to strike!

(Exit, R.)

END OF ACT II.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—A Terrace of the Temple.

Enter CLEMANTHE and ION, R.

Clem. Nay, I must chide this sorrow from thy brow,
Or ’twill rebuke my happiness!—I know
Too well the miseries that hem us round;
And yet the inward sunshine of my soul,
Unclouded by their melancholy shadows,
Bathes in its deep tranquillity one image—
One only image, which no outward storm
Can ever ruffle. Let me wean thee, then,
From this vain pondering o’er the general woe,
Which makes my joy look ugly.

Ion. No, my fair one,
The gloom that wrongs thy love is unredeem’d
By generous sense of others’ woe: too sure
It rises from dark presages within,
And will not from me.

Clem. Then it is most groundless!
Hast thou not won the blessings of the perishing
By constancy, the fame of which shall live
While a heart beats in Argos?—hast thou not Upon one agitated bosom pour’d
The sweetest peace? and can thy generous nature,
While it thus sheds felicity around it,
Remain itself unblest’d?

Ion. I strove awhile
To think the assured possession of thy love

With too divine a barthen weigh'd my heart
And press'd my spirits down;—but 'tis not so;
Nor will I with false tenderness beguile thee,
By feigning that my sadness has a cause
So exquisite. Clemant! thou wilt find me
A sad companion;—I who knew not life,
Save as the sportive breath of happiness,
Now feel my minutes teeming, as they rise,
With grave experiences; I dream no more
Of azure realms where restless beauty sports
In myriad shapes fantastic; dismal vaults
In black succession open till the gloom
Afar is broken by a streak of fire
That shapes my name—the fearful wind that moans

Before the storm articulates its sound;
And as I pass'd but now the solemn range
Of Argive monarchs, that in sculptured mockery
Of present empire sit, their eyes of stone
Bent on me instinct with a frightful life
That drew me into fellowship with them,
As conscious marble; while their ponderous lips—
Fit organs of eternity—unclosed,
And, as I live to tell thee, murmur'd, "Hail!
Hail! ION THE DEVOTED!"

Clem. These are faucies,
Which thy soul, late expanded with great purpose,
Shapes, as it quivers to its natural circle
In which its joys should lark, as in the bud
The cells of fragrance cluster. Bid them from thee,
And strive to be thyself.

Ion. I will do so!
I'll gaze upon thy loveliness, and drink
Its quiet in;—how beautiful thou art!—
My pulse throbs now as it was wont;—a being,
Which owns so fair a glass to mirror it,
Cannot show darkly.

Clem. We shall soon be happy;
My father will rejoice to bless our love,
And Argos waken;—for her tyrant's course
Must have a speedy end.

Ion. It must! It must!

Clem. Yes; for no empty talk of public wrongs
Assails him now; keen hatred and revenge
Are roused to crush him.

Ion. Not by such base agents
May the angust lustration be achieved:
He who shall cleanse his country from the guilt
For which Heaven smites her, should be pure of soul,

Guileless as infancy, and undisturb'd
By personal anger as thy father is,
When, with nuswerving hand and piteous eye,
He stops the brief life of the innocent kid
Bound with white fillets to the altar;—so
Enwreathed by fate the royal victim heaves,
And soon his breast shall shrink beneath the knife

Of the selected slayer!

Clem. 'Tis thyself
Whom thy strange language pictures—Ion! thou—
Ion. She has said it! Her pure lips have spoken out

What all things intimate;—did'st thou not mark
Me for the office of avenger—me?

Clem. No;—save from the wild picture that thy fancy—

Thy o'erwrought fancy drew; I thought it look'd
Too like thee, and I shudder'd.

Ion. So do I!

And yet I almost wish I shudder'd more,

For the dire thought has grown familiar with me—

Could I escape it!

Clem. 'Twill away in sleep.

Ion. No, no! I dare not sleep—for well I know That then the knife will gleam, the blood will gush,

The form will stiffen!—I will walk awhile
In the sweet evening light, and try to chase
These fearful images away.

Clem. Let me

Go with thee. O, how often hand in hand
In such a lovely light have we roam'd westward
Aimless and blessed, when we were no more Than playmates:—surely we are not grown stranger

Since yesterday!

Ion. No, dearest, not to-night:
The plague yet rages fiercely in the vale,
And I am placed in grave commission here
To watch the gates;—indeed thou must not pass;
I will be merrier when we meet again,—
Trust me, my love, I will; farewell!

[Exit Ion, L.

Clem. Farewell, then!

How fearful disproportion shows in one
Whose life hath been all harmony! He bends
Towards that thick covert where is blessed hour
My father found him, which has ever been
His chosen place of musing. Shall I follow?
Am I already grown a selfish mistress,
To watch his solitude with jealous eye,
And claim him all? That let me never be—
Yet danger from within besets him now,
Known to me only—I will follow him!

[Exit, L

SCENE II.—An opening in a deep wood—in front an old grey altar.

Enter ION.

Ion. O winding pathways, o'er whose scanty blades
Of unaspiring grass mine eyes have bent
So often when by musing fancy sway'd,
That craved alliance with no wider scene
Than your fair thickets border'd, but was pleased
To deem the toilsome years of manhood flown,
And, on the pictured mellowness of age
Idly reflective, image my return
From careful wanderings, to find ye gleam
With unchanged aspect on a heart unchanged,
And melt the busy past to a sweet dream
As then the future was;—why should ye now
Echo my steps with melancholy sound
As ye were consensous of a guilty presence?
The lovely light of eve, that, as it waned,
Touch'd ye with softer, homelier look, now fades
In dismal blackness; and yon twisted roots
Of ancient trees, with whose fantastic forms
My thoughts grew humorous, look terrible,
As if about to start to serpent life,
And hiss around me;—whither shall I turn?—
Where fly?—I see the myrtle-cradled spot
Where human love instructed by divine
Found and embraced me first; I'll cast me down
Upon that earth as on a mother's breast,
In hope to feel myself again a child.

[Ion goes into the wood.

Enter CTESIPHON, CASSANDER, and other
Argive youths.

Ctes. Sure this must be the place that Phocion spoke of;—

The twilight deepens, yet he does not come.
O, if, instead of idle dreams of freedom,
He knew the sharpness of a grief like mine,
He would not linger thus!

Cass. The sun's broad disk
Of misty red, a few brief minutes since,
Sank 'neath the leaden wave; but night steals on
With rapid pace to veil us, and thy thoughts
Are eager as the favouring darkness.

Enter PHOCION.

Ctes. Welcome!

Thou know'st all here.

Pho. Yes; I rejoice, Cassander,
To find thee my companion in a deed
Worthy of all the dreamings of old days,
When we, two rebel youths, grew safely brave
In visionary perils. We'll not shame
Our young imaginations. Ctesiphon,
We look to thee for guidance in our aim.

Ctes. I bring you glorious news. There is a soldier,

Who, in his reckless boyhood, was my comrade,
And though by taste of luxury subdued
Even to brook the tyrant's service, burns
With generous anger to avenge that grief
I bear above all others. He has made
The retribution sure. From him I learnt
That when Adrastus reached his palace court,
He paused, to struggle with some mighty throe
Of passion; then call'd eagerly for wine,
And bade his soldiers share his choicest stores,
And snatch, like him, a day from fortune. Soon,
As one worn out by watching and excess,
He stagger'd to his couch, where now he lies Oppress'd with heavy sleep, while his loose
soldiers,

Made by the fierce carousal vainly mad
Or grossly dull, are scatter'd through the courts
Unarm'd and cautiousless. The eastern portal
Is at this moment open; by that gate
We all may enter unperceived, and line
The passages which gird the royal chamber,
While one blest hand within completes the doom
Which Heaven pronounces. Nothing now remains,
But that as all would share this action's glory,
We join in one great vow, and choose one arm
Our common minister. Oh, if these sorrows
Confer on me the office to return
Upon the tyrant's shivering heart the blow
Which crush'd my father's spirit. I will leave
To him who cares for toys the patriot's laurel
And the applause of ages!

Pho. Let the gods

By the old course of lot reveal the name
Of the predestined champion. For myself,
Here do I solemnly devote all powers
Of soul and body to that glorious purpose
We live but to fulfil.

Ctes. And I!

Cass. And I!

Ion. (Who has advanced from the wood, rushes to the altar, and exclaims) And I;

Pho. Most welcome! The serenest powers of justice,

In prompting thy unspotted soul to join
Our bloody councils, sanctify and bless them!

Ion. The gods have prompted me; for they have given

One dreadful voice to all things which should be
Else dumb or musical; and I rejoice
To step from the grim round of waking dreams
Into this fellowship which makes all clear.
Wilt trust me, Ctesiphon?

Ctes. Yes; but we waste

The precious minutes in vain talk. If lots
Must guide us, have ye scrolls?

Pho. Cassander has them.

The flickering light of yonder glade will serve him

To inscribe them with our names. Be quick, Cas-sander!

Ctes. I wear a casque, beneath whose iron circlet
My father's dark hairs whiten'd; let it hold
The names of his avengers!

(Ctesiphon takes off his helmet and gives it to Cassander, who retires with it, &c.)

Pho. (To Ctesiphon.) He whose name
Thou shalt draw first shall fill the post of glory.
Were it not also well, the second name
Should designate another charged to take
The same great office, if the first should leave
His work imperfect?

Ctes. There can scarce be need;
Yet as thou wilt. May the first chance be mine!
I will leave little for a second arm.

(Cassander returns with the helmet.)

Ctes. Now, gods, decide!

(Ctesiphon draws a lot from the helmet.)

Pho. The name? Why dost thou pause?

Ctes. 'Tis Ion!

Ion. Well I knew it would be mine!

(Ctesiphon draws another lot.)

Ctes. Phocion! It will be thine to strike him dead

If he should prove faint-hearted.

Pho. With my life

I'll answer for thy constancy.

Ctes. (To Ion.) Thy hand!

'Tis cold as death.

Ion. Yes; but it is as firm.

What ceremony next?

(Ctesiphon leads Ion to the altar, and gives him a knife.)

Ctes. Receive this steel,
For ages dedicate in my sad home
To sacrificial uses; grasp it nobly,
And consecrate it to untrembling service
Against the King of Argos and his race.

Ion. His race! Is he not left alone on earth?
He hath no brother, and no child.

Ctes. Such words

The god hath used who never speaks in vain.

Pho. There were old rumours of an infant born
And strangely vanishing;—a tale of guilt
Half-hush'd, perchance distorted in the hushing,
And by the wise scarce heeded, for they deem'd it
One of a thousand guilty histories,
Which, if the walls of palaces could speak,
Would show that, nursed by prideful luxury,
To pamper which the virtuous peasant toils,
Crimes grow unpunished, which the pirates' nest,
Or want's foul hovel, or the cell which justice
Keeps for unlicensed guilt, would startle at!
We must root out the stock, that no stray scion
Renew the tree, whose branches, stifling virtue,
Shed poison-dews on joy.

Ion. (Approaches the altar, and, lifting up the knife, speaks.) Ye eldest gods,

Who in no statues of exactest form
Are palpable; who shun the azure heights
Of beautiful Olympus, and the sound
Of ever-young Apollo's minstrelsy;
Yet, mindful of the empire which ye held
Over dim Chaos, keep revenged wrath
On falling nations, and on kingly lines
About to sink for ever; ye, who shed
Into the passions of earth's giant brood
And their fierce usages the sense of justice;
Who clothe the fated battlements of tyranny
With blackness as a funeral pall, and breathe
Through the proud halls of time-emboldened guilt,
Portents of ruin, hear me!—In your presence,
For now I feel ye nigh, I dedicate
This arm to the destruction of the king
And of his race! O keep me pitiless;
Expel all human weakness from my frame,
That this keen weapon shake not when his heart
Should feel its point; and if he has a child
Whose blood is needful to the sacrifice
My country asks, harden my soul to shed it!—
Was not that thunder?

Cles. No! I heard no sound.
Now mark me, Ion!—thou shalt straight be led
To the king's chamber; we shall be at hand; Nothing can give thee pause. Hold! one should watch

The city's eastern portal, lest the troops,
Returning from the work of plunder home,
Surround us unprepared. Be that thy duty.
(To Phocion.)

Pho. I am to second Ion if he fail.

Cles. He cannot fail!—I shall be nigh. What,
Ion!

Ion. Who spake to me? Where am I? Friends, your pardon:

I am prepared; yet grant me for a moment,
One little moment, to be left alone.

Cles. Be brief, then, or the season of revenge
Will pass. At yonder thicket we'll expect thee.
(Exeunt all but Ion, L.)

Ion. Methinks I breathe more freely now my lot
Is palpable, and mortals gird me round,
Though my soul owns no sympathy with theirs
Some one approaches—I must hide this knife—
Hide! I have ne'er till now had aught to hide
From any human eye.

Clemanthe here!

Clem. Forgive me that I break upon thee thus:
I meant to watch thy steps unseen; but night
Is thickening; thou art haunted by sad fancies,
And 'tis more terrible to think upon thee
Wandering with such companions in thy bosom,
Than in the peril thou art wont to seek Beside the bed of death.

Ion. Death, say'st thou? Death?
Is it not righteous when the gods decree it?
And brief its sharpest agony? Yet, fairest,
It is no theme for thee. Go in at once,
And think of it no more.

Clem. Not without thee.
Indeed, thou art not well; thy hands are marble;
Thine eyes are fix'd; let me support thee, love:—
Ha! what is that gleaming within thy vest?
A knife! Tell me its purpose, Ion!

Ion. No;

My oath forbids.

Clem. An oath! Oh, gentle Ion,
What can have link'd thee to a cause which needs
A stronger cement than a good man's word?
There's danger in it. Wilt thou keep it from me?

Ion. Alas! I must. Thou wilt know all full soon—(Voices without call Ion, L.)

Hark! I am call'd.

Clem. Nay, do not leave me thus.

Ion. 'Tis very sad (voices again.)—I dare not stay farewell!

(Exit, I. E. L.)

Clem. It must be to Adrastus that he hastes!
If by his hand the fated tyrant die,
Austere remembrance of the deed will hang
Upon his delicate spirit like a cloud
And tinge its world of happy images
With hues of horror. Shall I to the palace,
And, as the price of my disclosure, claim
His safety? No!—'Tis never woman's part
Out of her fond misgivings to perplex
The fortunes of the man to whom she cleaves;
'Tis hers to weave all that she has of fair
And bright in the dark meshes of their web
Inseparable from their windings. My poor heart
Hath found its refuge in a hero's love,
Whatever destiny his generous soul
Shape for him;—'tis its duty to be still,
And trust him till it bound or break with his.

(Exit, L.)

SCENE III.—A Chamber in the Temple.

Enter MEDON, followed by Abra, R.

Medon. My daughter not within the temple,
sayst thou?

Abroad at such an hour? Sure not alone
She wander'd: tell me truly, did not Phocion
Or Ion bear her company? 'twas Ion—
Confess;—was it not he? I shall not chide, Indeed I shall not.

Abra. She went forth alone;
But it is true that Ion just before
Had taken the same path.

Medon. It was to meet him.
I would they were return'd; the night is grown
Of an unusual blackness. Some one comes—
Look if it be my daughter.

Abra. (Looking out.) No; young Irus,
The little slave, whose pretty tale of grief
Agenor, with so gracious a respect,
This morning told us.

Medon. Let him come; he bears
Some me sage from his master.

Medon. (To Irus.) Thou art pale:
Has any evil happen'd to Agenor?

Irus. No, my good lord; I do not come from him;

I bear to thee a scroll from one who now
Is number'd with the dead; he was my kinsman,
But I had never seen him till he lay
Upon his death-bed; for he left these shores
Long before I was born, and no one knew
His place of exile;—on this mournful day
He landed, was plague-stricken and expired.
My gentle master gave me leave to tend
His else unsolaced death-bed;—when he found
The clammy chillness of the grave steal on,

He called for parchment, and with trembling hand,
That seem'd to gather firmness from its task,
Wrote earnestly; conjured me take the scroll
Instant to thee; and died.

(Irus gives a scroll to Medon.)

Medon. (Reading the scroll.) These are high tidings.

Abra! is not Clemanthe come! I long
To tell her all.

Enter CLEMANTHE.

Medon. Sit down, my pensive child.
Abra, this boy is faint; see him refresh'd
With food and wine before thou lett'st him pass.

Irus. I have too long been absent from Agenor,
Who needs my slender help.

Medon. Nay, I will use
Thy master's firmness here, and use it so
As he would use it. Keep him prisoner, Abra,
Till he has done my bidding.

[Exeunt Abra and Irus, R.]

Now, Clemanthe,
Though thou hast play'd the truant and the rebel,
I will not be too strict in my award,
By keeping from thee news of one to thee
Most dear—nay, do not blush—I say most dear.

Clem. It is of Ion;—no—I do not blush,
But tremble. O my father, what of Ion?

Medon. How often have we guess'd his lineage noble!

And now 'tis proved. The kinsman of that youth
Was with another hired to murder him
A babe;—they tore him from his mother's breast,
And to a sea-girt summit, where a rock
O'erhung a chasm, by the surge's force
Made terrible, rush'd with him. As the gods
In mercy order'd it, the foremost ruffian,
Who bore no burden, pressing through the gloom
In the wild hurry of his guilty purpose,
Trod at the extreme verge upon a crag
Loosen'd by summer from its granite bed,
And suddenly fell with it;—with his fall
Sank the base daring of the man who held
The infant; so he placed the unconscious babe
Upon the spot where it was found by me;
Watch'd till he saw the infant safe; then fled,
Fearful of question; and return'd to die.
That child is Ion. Whom dost guess his sire?—
The first in Argos.

Clem. Dost thou mean Adrastus?
He cannot—must not—be that tyrant's son!

Medon. It is most certain. Nay, my thankless girl,

He hath no touch of his rash father's pride;
For nature, from whose genial lap he smiled
Upon us first, hath moulded for her own
The suppliant of her bounty;—thou art bless'd;
Thus, let me bid thee joy.

Clem. Joy, sayst thou—joy!
Then I must speak—he seeks Adrastus' life;
And at this moment, while we talk, may stain
His soul with parricide.

Medon. Impossible!

Ion, the gentlest—

Clem. It is true, my father:

I saw the weapon gleaming in his vest;
I heard him call'd!

Medon. Shall I alarm the palace?

Clem. No; in the fierce confusion he would fall
Before our tale could be its safeguard. Gods!
Is there no hope, no refuge?

Medon. Yes, if Heaven

Assist us. I bethink me of a passage,
Which, fashion'd by a king in pious zeal,
That he might seek the altar of the god
In secret, from the temple's inmost shrine
Leads to the royal chamber. I have track'd it
In youth for pastime. Could I thread it now,
I yet might save him.

Clem. O, make haste, my father!
Shall I attend thee?

Medon. No; thou would'st impede
My steps;—thou art fainting; when I have lodged thee safe

In thy own chamber, I will light the torch,
And instantly set forward.

Clem. Do not waste
An instant's space on me; speed, speed, my father—

The fatal moments fly; I need no aid;—
Thou seest I am calm, quite calm.

Medon. The gods protect thee!

[Exeunt Medon, L.; Clemanthe, R.]

END OF ACT III.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The Royal Chamber.—Adrastus on a couch, asleep.

Enter ION with the knife.

Ion. Why do I creep thus stealthily along With trembling steps? Am I not arm'd by Heaven

To execute its mandate on a king
Whom it hath doom'd? And shall I falter now,
While every moment that he breathes may crush
Some life else happy!—Can I be deceived
By some foul passion, crouching in my soul,
Which takes a radiant form to lure me on?
Assure me, gods!—Yes; I have heard your voices;
For I dare pray ye now to nerve my arm
And see me strike!

(He goes to the couch.)

He's smiling in his slumber,
As if some happy thought of innocent days
Play'd at his heart-strings: must I scare it thence With death's sharp agony? He lies condemn'd—
By the foul judgment of supernal Powers,
And he shall know their sentence. Wake, Adrastus!

Collect thy spirits, and be strong to die!

Adras. Who dares disturb my rest? Guards!
Soldiers! Recreants!

Where tarry ye? Why smite ye not to earth
This bold intruder?—Ha, no weapon here!—
What wouldst thou with me, ruffian? (Rising.)

Ion. I am none,

But a sad instrument in Jove's great hand
To take thy life, long forfeited—Prepare!
Thy hour is come!

Adras. Villains! does no one hear?

Ion. Vex not the closing minutes of thy being
With torturing hope or idle rage; thy guards,
Palsied with revelry, are scatter'd senseless,
While the most valiant of our Argive youths
Hold every passage by which human aid
Could reach thee. Present death is the award
Of Powers who watch above me while I stand
To execute their sentence.

Adras. Thon!—I know thee—

The youth I spared this morning, in whose ear I pour'd the secrets of my bosom. Kill me, If thou dar'st do it; but bethink thee first How the grim memory of thy thankless deed Will haunt thee to the grave!

Ion. It is most true;
Thou spar'dst my life, and therefore do the gods Ordain me to this office, lest thy fall Seem the chance forfeit of some single sin, And not the great redress of Argos. Now— Now, while I parley—Spirits that have left, Within this hour, their plague-tormented flesh To rot untomb'd, glide by, and frown on me, Thy slow avenger—and the chamber swarms With looks of furies—Yet a moment wait, Ye dreadful prompters!—If there is a friend, Whom dying thou wouldst greet by word or token, Speak thy last bidding.

Adras. I have none on earth.
If thou hast courage, end me!

Ion. Not one friend!
Most piteous doom!
Adras. Art melted?

Ion. If I am,
Hope nothing from my weakness; mortal arms, And eyes unseen that sleep not, gird us round, And we shall fall together. Be it so!

Adras. No; strike at once; my hour is come: in thee

I recognise the minister of Jove,
And, kneeling thus, submit me to his power.
(Adrastus kneels.)

Ion. Avert thy face!
Adras. No; let me meet thy gaze;
For breathing pity lights thy features up
Into more awful likeness of a form
Which once shone on me;—and which now my sense
Shapes palpable—in habit of the grave,
Inviting me to the sad realm where shades
Of innocents, whom passionate regard
Link'd with the guilty, are content to pace
With them the margin of the inky flood Mournful and calm;—'tis surely there; she waves

Her pallid hand in circle o'er thy head,
As if to bless thee—and I bless thee too,
Death's gracious angel!—Do not turn away.

Ion. Gods! to what office have ye doom'd me;—
Now!

(Ion raises his arm to stab Adrastus, who is kneeling, and gazes steadfastly upon him.—The voice of Medon is heard without, calling, "Ion!" "Ion!"—Ion drops his arm.)

Adras. Be quick, or thou art lost!
(As Ion has again raised his arm to strike, MEDON rushes in behind him, c.)

Medon. Ion, forbear!
Behold thy son, Adrastus!

(Ion stands for a moment stupified with horror, drops the knife, and falls senseless on the ground.)

Adras. What strange words
Are these which call my senses from the death
They were composed to welcome? Son, 'tis false—

I had but one—and the deep wave rolls o'er him!
Medon. That wave received, instead of the fair nurseling,

One of the slaves who bore him from thy sight
In wicked haste to slay;—I'll give thee proofs.

Adras. Great Jove, I thank thee!—raise him gently—proofs!

Are there not here the lineaments of her
Who made me happy once—the voice, now still,
That bade the long-seal'd fount of love gush out,
While with a prince's constancy he came
To lay his noble life down; and the sure,
The dreadful proof, that he whose guileless brow
Is instinct with her spirit, stood above me,
Arm'd for the traitor's deed?—It is my child!

(Ion, reviving, sinks on one knee before Adrastus.)
Ion. Father!
(Noise without.)

Medon. The clang of arms!
Ion. (Starting up.) They come! they come!
They who are leagued with me against thy life.
Here let us fall!

Adras. I will confront them yet.
Within I have a weapon that has drunk
A traitor's blood ere now;—there will I wait them;
No power less strong than death shall part us
now.

(Exit Adrastus and Ion, as to an inner chamber, v. E. L.)

Medon. Have mercy on him, gods, for the dear sake

Of your most single-hearted worshipper!

Enter CTESIPHON, CASSANDER, and others, L.

Ctes. What treachery is this—the tyrant fled,
And Ion fled too!—Comrades, stay this dotard,
While I search yonder chamber

Medon. Spare him, friends,— Spare him to clasp awhile his new-found son;
Spare him as Ion's father!

Ctes. Father! yes—
That is indeed a name to bid me spare;—
Let me but find him, gods!

(He rushes into the inner chamber.)
Medon. (To Cassander and others.) Had ye but seen

What have I seen, ye would have mercy on him.

CRYTHES enters with soldiers, R.

Ha, soldiers, hasten to defend your master!
That way—

(As Crythes is about to enter the inner chamber, v. E. L., Ctesiphon rushes from it with a bloody dagger, and stops them.)

Ctes. It is accomplished; the foul blot
Is wiped away. Shade of my murder'd father,
Look on thy son, and smile!

Crythes. Whose blood is that?
It cannot be the king's

Ctes. It cannot be.
Think'st thou, foul minion of a tyrant's will,
He was to crush, and thou to crawl for ever?
Look there, and tremble!

Crythes. Wretch! thy life shall pay
The forfeit of this deed.

(Crythes and soldiers seize Ctesiphon.)
Enter ADRASTUS, mortally wounded, supported by ION, v. E. L.

Adras. Here let me rest;
In this old chamber did my life begin,
And here I'll end it: Crythes! thou hast timed

Thy visit well, to bring thy soldiers hither
To gaze upon my parting.

Crythes. To avenge thee;—
Here is the traitor!

Adras. Set him free at once:—
Why do ye not obey me? Ctesiphon,
I gave thee cause for this;—believe me now
That thy true steel has made thy vengeance sure;
And as we now stand equal, I will sue
For a small boon—let me not see thee more.

Ctes. Farewell!

[Exit Ctes.]

Adras. (To Crythes and the soldiers.) Why do ye tarry here?

Begone!—still do ye hover round my couch?
If the commandment of a dying king
Is feeble, as a man who has embraced
His child for the first time since infancy,
And presently must part with him for ever,
I do adjure ye leave us!

[Exit all but Ion and Adras.]

Ion. O, my father!
How is it with thee now?

Adras. Well; very well;—
Avenging fate hath spent its utmost force
Against me; and I gaze upon my son
With the sweet certainty that nought can part us
Till all is quiet here. How like a dream
Seems the succession of my regal pomps
Since I embraced thy helplessness! To me
The interval hath been a weary one:
How hath it pass'd with thee?

Ion. But that my heart
Hath sometimes ached for the sweet sense of kindred,

I had enjoy'd a round of happy years
As cherish'd youth e'er knew.

Adras. I bless the gods
That they have strewn along thy humble path
Delights unblamed; and in this hour I seem Even as I had lived so; and I feel
That I shall live in thee, unless that curse—
Oh, if it should survive me!

Ion. Think not of it;
The gods have shed such sweetness in this moment,
That, howsoe'er they deal with me hereafter,
I shall not deem them angry. Let me call
For help to stanch thy wound; thou art strong yet,

And yet may live to bless me.

Adras. Do not stir;
My strength is ebbing fast; yet, as it leaves me,
The spirit of my stainless days of love
Awakens; and their images of joy,
Which at thy voice started from blank oblivion,
When thou wert strange to me, and then half-shown

Look'd sadly through the mist of guilty years,
Now glimmer on me in the lovely light Which at thy age they wore. Thou art all thy mother's,

Her elements of gentlest virtue cast
In mould heroic.

Ion. Thy speech grows fainter;
Can I do nothing for thee?

Adras. Yes;—my son,
Thou art the best, the bravest, of a race
Of rightful monarchs; thou must mount the throne

Thy ancestors have fill'd, and by great deeds
Efface the memory of thy fated sire,
And win the blessings of the gods for men

Stricken for him. Swear to me thou wilt do this,
And I shall die forgiven.

Ion. I will.

Adras. Rejoice,
Sufferers of Argos! I am growing weak,
And my eyes dazzle; let me rest my hands,
Ere they have lost their feeling, on thy head.—
So! So!—thy hair is glossy to the touch
As when I last enwreathed its tiny curl
About my finger; I did image then
Thy reign excell'ing mine; it is fulfilled,
And I die happy. Bless thee, King of Argos!

(Dies.)

Ion. He's dead! and I am fatherless again.—
King did he hail me? Shall I make that word
A spell to bid old happiness awake
Throughout the lovely land that fathered me
In my forsaken childhood?

(He sees the knife on the ground, and takes it up.)

Most vain dream!
This anstere monitor had bid thee vanish
Ere half reveal'd. Come back, thou truant steel;
Half of thy work the gods absolved thee from—
The rest remains! Lie there!

(He conceals the knife in his vest. Shouts heard without.)

The voice of joy!
Is this thy funeral wailing? O my father!
Mourful and brief will be the heritage
Thou leavest me; yet I promised thee in death
To grasp it;—and I will embrace it now.

Enter AGENOR and others.

Agenor. Does the king live?

Ion. Alas! in me. The son
Of him whose princely spirit is at rest,
Claims his ancestral honours.

Agenor. That high thought
Anticipates the prayer of Argos, roused
To sudden joy. The sages wait without
To greet thee. Wilt confer with them to-night,
Or wait the morning?

Ion. Now;—the city's state
Allows the past no sorrow. I attend them.

[Exit, L.]

SCENE II.—Before the Gate of the City.

PHOCION on guard.

Pho. Fool that I was to take this idle office
At most inglorious distance from the scene
Which shall be freedom's birth-place; to endure
The phantasies of danger which the soul
Uncheer'd by action coldly dallies with Till it begins to shiver! Long ere this,
If Ion's hand be firm, the deed is past,
And yet no shout announces that the bonds
Of tyranny are broken. (Shouts at a distance.)
Hark! 'tis done!

Enter CTESIPHON, L.

All hail, my brother freeman!—art not so?
Thy looks are haggard—is the tyrant slain?
Is liberty achieved?

Ctes. The king is dead;
This arm—I bless the righteous furies!—slew him.

Pho. Did Ion quail, then?

Ctes. Ion!—clothe thy speech
In phrase more courtly; he is king of Argos,
Accepted as the tyrant's son, and reigns.

Pho. It cannot be; I can believe him born

Of such high lineage; yet he will not change
His own rich treasury of unruffled thoughts
For all the frigid glories that invest
The loveless state in which the monarch dwells
A terror and a slave. (Shouts again.)

Ctes. Dost hear that shout?
'Tis raised for him!—the craven-hearted world
Is ever eager thus to hail a master,
And patriots smite for it in vain. Our soldiers,
In the gay recklessness of men who sport
With life as with a plaything; citizens
On wretched beds gaping for show; and sages,
Vain of a royal sophist, madly join
In humble prayer that he would deign to tread
Upon their necks; and he is pleased to grant it.

Pho. He shall not grant it! If my life, my sense,

My heart's affections, and my tongue's free scope
Wait the dominion of a mortal will,
What is the sound to me, whether my soul
Bears "Ion" or "Adrastus" burnt within it
As my soul's owner? Ion tyrant? No!
Grant me a moment's pleading with his heart,
Which has not known a selfish throb till now,
And thou shalt see him smile this greatness from him.

Ctes. Go teach the eagle when in azure heaven
He upward darts to seize his madden'd prey,
Shivering through the death-circle of its fear,
To pause and let it 'scape, and thou mayst win
Man to forego the sparkling round of power,
When it floats airily within his grasp!

Pho. Why thus severe? Our nature's common wrongs Affect thee not; and that which touch'd thee nearly
Is well avenged.

Ctes. Not while the son of him
Who smote my father reigns! I little guess'd
Thou wouldst require a prompter to awake
The memory of the oath so freshly sworn,
Or of the place assign'd to thee by lot,
Should our first champion fail to crush the race—
Mark me!—"the race" of him my arm has dealt with.

Now is the time, the palace all confused,
And the prince dizzy with strange turns of fortune,

To do thy part.

Pho. Have mercy on my weakness!
If thou hadst known this comrade of my sports,
One of the same small household whom his mirth
Unfailing gladden'd;—if a thousand times
Thou hadst, by strong prosperity made thoughtless,

Touch'd its unfather'd nature in its nerve
Of agony, and felt no chiding glance;—
Hadst thou beheld him overtax his strength
To serve the wish his genial instinct guess'd,
Till his dim smile the weariness betray'd,
Which it would fain dissemble; hadst thou known
In sickness the sweet magic of his care,
Thou couldst not ask it.—Hear me, Ctesiphon!—
I had a deadly fever once, and slaves
Fled me: he watch'd, and glided to my bed,
And sooth'd my dull ear with discourse which grew

By nice degrees to ravishment, till pain
Seem'd an heroic sense, which made me kin
To the great deeds he pictured, and the brood
Of dizzy weakness flickering through the gloom
Of my small curtain'd prison caught the hues

Of beauty spangling out in glorious change;
And it became a luxury to lie
And faintly listen. Canst thou bid me slay him?

Ctes. The deed be mine. Thou'lt not betray me? (Going.)

Pho. Hold!
If by our dreadful compact he must fall,
I will not smite him with my coward thought
Winging a distant arm; I will confront him
Arm'd with delicious memories of our youth,
And pierce him through them all.

Ctes. Be speedy, then!

Pho. Fear not that I shall prove a laggard, charged
With weight of such a purpose.—Fate commands,
And I live now but to perform her bidding.

[Exit Ctesephon, &, and Phocion, &.]

SCENE III.—A Terrace in the Garden of the Palace, by Moonlight.

Enter ION and AGENOR, &.

Agenor. Wilt thou not in to rest?

Ion. My rest is here—

Beneath the greatness of the heavens, which awes
My spirit, toss'd by sudden change, and torn
By various passions, to repose. Yet age
Requires more genial nourishment—pray seek it—
I will but stay thee to inquire once more
If any symptom of returning health
Bless the wan city?

Agenor. No—the perishing

Lift up their painful heads to bless thy name,
And their eyes kindle as they utter it;
But still they perish.

Ion. So!—give instant order,
The rites which shall confirm me in my throne
Be solemnized to-morrow.

Agenor. How! so soon,
While the more sacred duties to the dead
Remain unpaid?

Ion. Let them abide my time—
They will not tarry long. I see thee gaze
With wonder on me—do my bidding now,
And trust me till to-morrow. Pray go in,
The night will chill thee else.

Agenor. Farewell, my lord!

[Exit.

Ion. Now all is stillness in my breast—how soon
To be displaced by more profound repose,
In which no thread of consciousness shall live
To feel how calm it is!—O lamp serene,
Do I lift up to thee undazzled eyes
For the last time? Shall I enjoy no more
Thy golden haziness which seemed akin
To my young fortune's dim felicity?
And when it coldly shall embrace the urn
That shall contain my ashes, will no thought
Of all the sweet ones cherish'd by thy beams
Awake to tremble with them? Vain regret!
The pathway of my duty lies in sunlight,
And I would tread it with as firm a step,
Though it should terminate in cold oblivion,
As if Elysian pleasures at its close
Gleam'd palpable to sight as things of earth.
Who passes there?

Enter PHOCION, & E. L., who strikes at ION with a dagger.

Pho. This to the king of Argos!

(Ion struggles with him, seizes the dagger, which he throws away.)

Ion. I will not fall by thee, poor wavering novice.

In the assassin's trade!—thy arm is feeble—
(He confronts Phocion.)

Phocion! was this well aim'd? thou did'st not mean—

Pho. I meant to take thy life, urged by remembrance

Of yesterday's great vow.

Ion. And couldst thou think

I had forgotten?

Pho. Thou?

Ion. Could'st thou believe,
 That one whose nature had been arm'd to stop
 The life-blood's current in a fellow's veins,
 Would hesitate when gentler duty turn'd
 His steel to nearer use? To-morrow's dawn
 Shall see me wield the sceptre of my fathers:
 Come, watch beside my throne, and, if I fail
 In sternest duty which my country needs,
 My bosom will be open to thy steel,
 As now to thy embrace!

Pho. Thus let me fall
 Low at thy feet, and kneeling here receive Forgiveness; do not crush me with more love
 Than lies in the word "pardon."

Ion. And that word
 I will not speak!—what have I to forgive?
 A devious fancy, and a muscle raised
 Obedient to its impulse! Dost thou think
 The tracings of a thousand kindnesses,
 Which taught me all I guess'd of brotherhood,
 Are in the rashness of a moment lost?

Pho. I cannot look upon thee; let me go,
 And lose myself in darkness.

Ion. Nay, old playmate,
 We part not thus—the duties of my state
 Will shortly end our fellowship; but spend
 A few sweet minutes with me. Dost remember
 How, in a night like this, we climb'd yon walls—
 Two vagrant urchins, and with tremulous joy Skimm'd through these statue-border'd walks that gleam'd

In bright succession? Let us tread them now;
 And think we are but older by a day,
 And that the pleasant walk of yesternight
 We are to-night retracing. Come, my friend!—
 What, drooping yet! thou wert not wont to seem
 So stubborn—cheerily, my Phocion—come!

[Exeunt, R.]

END OF ACT IV.

ACT V.

SCENE I.—Time—the Morning of the Second Day.—
The Terrace of the Palace—Two Soldiers on Guard.

1st Sol. A stirring season, comrade! Our new prince

Has leap'd as eagerly into his seat
 As he had languish'd an expectant heir
 Weary of nature's kindness to old age.
 He was esteem'd a modest stripling;—strange
 That he should, with such reckless hurry seize
 The gaudy shows of power!

2nd Sol. 'Tis honest nature;
 The royal instinct was but smouldering in him,
 And now it blazes forth. I pray the gods
 He may not give us cause to mourn his sire.

1st Sol. No more; he comes.

Enter ION, c.

Ion. Why do ye loiter here?
 Are all the statues decked with festal wreaths
 As I commanded?

1st Sol. We have been on guard
 Here by Agenor's order since the nightfall.

Ion. On guard! Well, hasten now and see it done;

I need no guards.

[Exeunt Soldiers.]

The awful hour draws near;
 I am composed to meet it.—Phocion comes;
 He will unman me; yet he must not go.
 Thinking his presence painful.

Friend, good morrow!
 Thou play'st the courtier early.

Pho. Canst thou speak
 In that old tone of common cheerfulness,
 That blithely promises delightful years,
 And hold thy mournful purpose?

Ion. I have drawn
 From the selectest fountain of repose
 A blessed calm;—when I lay down to rest,
 I fear'd lest bright remembrances of childhood
 Should with untimely visitation mock me;
 But deep and dreamless have my slumbers been.
 If sight of these renews the thoughts of life
 Too busily,—I prize the love that wakes them.

Pho. Oh, cherish them, and let them plead with thee

To grant my prayer,—that thou wouldst live for Argos,

Not die for her;—thy gracious life shall win
 More than thy death the favour of the gods,
 And charm the marble aspect of grim Fate
 Into a blessed change: I, who am vow'd,
 And who solate was arm'd Fate's minister,
 Implore thee!

Ion. Speak to me no more of life;
 There is a dearer name I would recall—
 Thou understand'st me—

Agenor. Thou hast forgot to name
 Who shall be bidden to this evening's feast.

Ion. The feast! most true; I had forgotten it.
 Bid whom thou wilt; but let there be large store,
 If our sad walls contain it, for the wretched
 Whom hunger palsies. It may be few else
 Will taste it with a relish.

*[Exit Agenor, L.
 (Ion resumes his address to Phocion, and continues it broken by the interruptions which follow.)*

I would speak
 A word of her who yester-morning rose
 To her light duties with as blithe a heart
 As ever yet its equal beating veil'd
 In moveless alabaster;—plighted now,
 In liberal hour, to one whose destiny
 Shall freeze the sources of enjoyment in it,
 And make it heavy with the life-long pang
 A widow'd spirit bears!—

Cleon. The heralds wait
 To learn the hour at which the solemn games
 Shall be proclaim'd.

Ion. The games!—yes, I remember
 That sorrow's darkest pageantries give place

To youth's robustest pastimes—Death and Life
Embracing:—At the hour of noon.

Cleon. The wrestlers
Pray thee to crown the victor.

Ion. If I live,
Their wish shall govern me.

[Exeunt Cleon, L.]

Could I recall
One hour, and bid thy sister think of me
With gentle sorrow, as a playmate lost,
I should escape the guilt of having stopp'd
The pulse of hope in the most innocent soul
That ever passion ruffled. Do not talk
Of me as I shall seem to thy kind thoughts,
But harshly as thou canst; and if thou steal
From thy rich store of popular eloquence
Some bitter charge against the faith of kings,
'Twill be an honest treason.

Enter CASSANDER, R.

Cass. Pardon me,
If I entreat thee to permit a few
Of thy once-cherish'd friends to bid thee joy
Of that which swells their pride.

Ion. They'll madden me.—
Dost thou not see me circled round with care?
Urges me no more.

(As Cassander is going, Ion leaves Phocion, and comes to him.)

Come back, Cassander! see
How greatness frets the temper. Keep this ring—
It may remind thee of the pleasant hours
That we have spent together, ere our fortunes
Grew separate; and with thy gracious speech
Excuse me to our friends.

[Exeunt Cassander, R.]

Pho. 'Tis time we seek
The temple.

Ion. Phocion! must I to the temple?

Pho. There sacrificial rites must be perform'd
Before thou art enthroned

Ion. Then I must gaze
On things which will arouse the struggling thoughts

I had subdued—perchance may meet with her
Whose name I dare not utter. I am ready.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—The Temple.

CLEMANTHE and ABRA discovered.

Abra. Be comforted, dear lady;—he must come
To sacrifice.

Cle. Recall that churlish word,
That stubborn "must" that bounds my living hopes,

As with an iron circle. He must come!
How piteous is affection's state, that cleaves
To such a wretched prop! I had flown to him
Long before this, but that I fear'd my presence
Might prove a burthen,—and he sends no word,
No token that he thinks of me! Art sure
That he must come? The hope has torture in it;
Yet it is all my bankrupt heart hath left
To feed upon.

Abra. I see him now with Phocion
Pass through the inner court.

Cle. He will not come
This way, then, to the place for sacrifice.
I can endure no more: speed to him, Abra;
And bid him, if he holds Clemanthe's life
Worthy a minute's loss, to seek me here.

Abra. Dear lady!—

Cle. Do not answer me, but run,
Or I shall give you crowd of sycophants
To gaze upon my sorrow.

[Exit Abra, L.]

It is hard;
Yet I must strive to bear it, and find solace
In that high fortune which has made him strange
He bends this way—but slowly—mournfully.
O, he is ill; how has my slander wronged him!

Ion. What would'st thou with me, lady?

Clem. Is it so?

Nothing, my lord, save to employ thy pardon,
That the departing gleams of a bright dream,
From which I scarce had waken'd, made me bold
To crave a word with thee;—but all are fled—
And I have nought to seek.

Ion. A goodly dream;
But thou art right to think it was no more,
And study to forget it.

Clem. To forget it?

Indeed, my lord, I cannot wish to lose
What, being past, is all my future bath,
All I shall live for; do not grudge me this,
The brief space I shall need it.

Ion. Speak not, fair one,

In tone so mournful, for it makes me feel
Too sensibly the hapless wretch I am,
That troubled the deep quiet of thy soul
In that pure fountain that reflected heaven,
For a brief taste of rapture.

Clem. Dost thou yet

Esteem it rapture, then? My foolish heart,
Be still! Yet wherefore should a crown divide us?

O, my dear Ion!—let me call thee so
This once at least—it could not in my thoughts
Increase the distance that there was between us,
When, rich in spirit, thou to strangers' eyes
Seem'd a poor foundling.

Ion. It must separate us!

Think it no harmless bauble, but a curse
Will freeze the current in the veins of youth,
And from familiar touch of genial hand,
From household pleasures, from sweet daily tasks,
From airy thought, free wanderer of the heavens,
For ever banish me!

Clem. Thou dost accuse

Thy state too hardly. It may give some room,
Some little space, amidst its radiant folds,
For love to make its nest in!

Ion. Not for me:

My pomp must be most lonesome, far remov'd
From that sweet fellowship of human kind
The slave rejoices in: my solemn robes
Shall wrap me as a panoply of ice,
And the attendants who may throng around me
Shall want the flatteries which may basely warm
The sceptral thing they circle. Dark and cold Stretches the path, which, when I wear the crown,

I needs must enter:—the great gods forbid
That thou shouldst follow in it!

Clem. O unkind!

And shall we never see each other?

Ion (After a pause.) Yes!

I have ask'd that dreadful question of the hills
That look eternal; of the flowing streams
That lucid flow for ever; of the stars,
Amid whose fields of azure my raised spirit

Hath trod in glory : all were dumb ; but now,
While I thus gaze upon thy living face,
I feel the love that kindles through its beauty
Can never wholly perish ;—we shall meet Again, Clemanthe !

Clem. Bless thee for that name ;
Call me that name again ; thy words sound
strangely,
Yet they breathe kindness. Shall we meet indeed ?

Think not I would intrude upon thy cares,
Thy councils, or thy pomps ;—to sit at distance,
To weave, with the nice labour which preserves
The rebel pulses even, from gay threads
Faint records of thy deeds, and sometimes catch
The falling music of a gracious word,
Or the stray sunshine of a smile, will be Comfort enough :—do not deny me this ;
Or if stern fate compel thee to deny,
Kill me at once !

Ion. No ; thou must live, my fair one :
There are a thousand joyous things in life,
Which pass unheeded in a life of joy
As thine hath been, till breezy sorrow comes
To ruffle it ; and daily duties paid
Hardly at first, at length will bring repose
To the sad mind that studies to perform them.
Thou dost not mark me.

Clem. Oh, I do ! I do !
Ion. If for thy brother's and thy father's sake
Thou art content to live, the healer Time
Will reconcile thee to the lovely things
Of this delightful world,—and if another,
A happier—no, I cannot bid thee love
Another !—I did think I could have said it,
But 'tis in vain.

Clem. Thou art mine own then still ?
Ion. I am thine own ! thus let me clasp thee ;
nearer ;
O joy too thrilling and too short !

Enter AGENOR, R.

Agenor. My lord,
The sacrificial rites await thy presence.
Ion. I come.—One more embrace—the last, the last
In this world ! Now farewell !

[Exeunt Agenor and Ion.]

Clem. The last embrace !
Then he has cast me off !—No, 'tis not so ;
Some mournful secret of his fate divides us :
I'll struggle to bear that, and snatch a comfort
From seeing him uplifted. I will look Upon him in his throne ; Minerva's shrine
Will shelter me from vulgar gaze ; I'll hasten,
And feast my sad eyes with his greatness there !

[Exit, R.]

SCENE III.—*The Great Square of the City—on the
L. a throne of state prepared,—on the R. an altar,—

Enter CTESIPHON and CASSANDER, R. U. E.

Ctes. Vex me no more, by telling me, Cassander,
Of his fair speech : I prize it at its worth :
Thou'lt see how he will act when seated firm
Upon the throne the craven tyrant fill'd,
Whose blood he boasts, unless some honest arm
Should shed it first.

Cass. Hast thou forgot the time
When thou thyself wert eager to foretell
His manhood's glory from his childish virtues ?

Let me not think thee one of those fond prophets,
Who are well pleased still to foretell success,
So it remain their dream.

Ctes. Thou dost forget
What has chill'd fancy and delight within me—
(Music at a distance.)

Hark !—serve trumpets speak his coming—watch
How power will change him. (They stand aside.)

The Procession. Enter, U. E. R., MEDON, AGENOR, PHOCION, TIMOCLES, CLEON, Sages, and People ; ION last, in royal robes. He advances amidst shouts, and speaks.

Ion. I thank you for your greeting—Shout no more,

But in deep silence raise your hearts to Heaven,
That it may strengthen one so young and frail
As I am, for the business of this hour.

Must I sit here ?
Medon. Permit thy earliest friend,
Who has so often propp'd thy tottering steps,
To lead thee to thy throne,—and thus fulfil
His fondest vision.

Ion. Thou art still most kind—

Medon. Nay, do not think of me, my son ! my son !

What ails thee ? When thou shouldst reflect the joy

Of Argos, the strange paleness of the grave
Marbles thy face.

Ion. Am I indeed so pale ?
It is a solemn office I assume ;
Yet thus, with Phoebus' blessing, I embrace it.
(Sits on the throne.)

Stand forth, Agenor !

Agenor. I await thy will.
Ion. To thee I look as to the wisest friend
Of this afflicted people :—thou must leave
Awhile the quiet which thy life hath earn'd,
To rule our councils ; fill the seats of justice
With good men not so absolute in goodness,
As to forget what human frailty is ;
And order my sad country.

Agenor. Pardon me—
Ion. Nay, I will promise 'tis my last request ;
Thou never could'st deny me what I sought
In boyish wantonness, and shalt not grudge
Thy wisdom to me, till our state revive
From its long anguish ;—it will not be long
If Heaven approve me here. Thou hast all power

Whether I live or die.

Agenor. Die ! I am old—
Ion. Death is not jealous of thy mild decay,
Which gently wins thee his ; exulting Youth
Provokes the ghastly monarch's sudden stride,
And makes his horrid fingers quick to clasp
His shivering prey at noontide. Let me see
The captain of the guard.

Crythes. I kneel to crave
Humbly the favour which thy sire bestow'd
On one who loved him well.

Ion. I cannot thank thee,
That wakest the memory of my father's weakness

But I will not forget that thou hast shared
The light enjoyments of a noble spirit,
And learn'd the need of luxury. I grant
For thee and thy brave comrades, ample share
Of such rich treasure as my stores contain,
To grace thy passage to some distant land,

Where, if an honest cause engage thy sword,
May glorious laurels wreath it! In our realm
We shall not need it longer.

Crythes. Dost intend

To banish the firm troops before whose valour
Barbarian millions shrink appall'd, and leave
Our city naked to the first assault
Of reckless foes?

Ion. No, Crythes!—in ourselves,
In our own honest hearts and chainless hands
Will be our safeguard;—while we seek no use
Of arms, we would not have our children blend
With their first innocent wishes; while the love
Of Argos and of justice shall be one
To their young reason: while their sinews grow
Firm midst the gladness of heroic sports;
We shall not ask to guard our country's peace
One selfish passion, or one venal sword.
I would not grieve thee;—but thy valiant troop—
For I esteem them valiant—must no more
With luxury which suits a desperate camp
Infect us. See that they embark, Agenor, Ere night.

Crythes. My ord—

Ion. No more—my word hath pass'd
Medon, there is no office I can add
To those thou hast grown old in; thou wilt guard
The shrine of Phœbus, and within thy home—
Thy too delightful home—befriend the stranger
As thou didst me;—there sometimes waste a thought

On thy spoil'd inmate!

Medon. Think of thee, my lord?

Long shall we triumph in thy glorious reign—

Ion. Prithee no more. Argives! I have a boon
To crave of you;—whene'er I shall rejoin
In death the father from whose heart in life
Stern fate divided me, think gently of him!
For ye, who saw him in his full-blown pride,
Knew little of affections crush'd within,
And wrongs which frenzied him; yet never more
Let the great interests of the state depend Upon the thousand chances that may sway
A piece of human frailty! Swear to me
That ye will seek hereafter in yourselves
The means of sovereign rule:—our narrow space,
So happy in its confines, so compact,
Needs not the magic of a single name
Which wider regions may require to draw
Their interests into one; but, circled thus,
Like a bless'd family by simple laws,
May tenderly be govern'd; all degrees
Moulded together as a single form
Of nymph-like loveliness, which finest chords
Of sympathy pervading shall suffice
In times of quiet with one bloom, and fill
With one resistless impulse, if the hosts
Of foreign power should threaten. Swear to me
That ye will do this!

Medon. Wherefore ask this now?

Thou shalt live long;—the paleness of thy face
Which late appall'd me is grown radiant now,
And thine eyes kindle with the prophecy
Of lustrous years.

Ion. The gods approve me then?
Yet I will use the function of a king,
And claim obedience. Promise if I leave

No issue, that the sovereign power shall live
In the affections of the general heart,
And in the wisdom of the best.

Medon and others. We swear it!

Ion. Hear and record the oath, immortal powers!

Now give me leave a moment to approach
That altar unattended.

(He goes to the altar.)

Gracious gods!

In whose mild service my glad youth was spent,
Look on me now;—and if there is a Power,
As at this solemn time I feel there is,
Beyond ye, that hath breathed through all you shapes

The spirit of the beautiful that lives

In earth and Heaven;—to ye I offer up
This conscious being, full of life and love,
For my dear country's welfare. Let this blow
End all her sorrows!

(Stabs himself and falls. Ctesiphon rushes to support him.)

Ctesiphon, thou art

Avenged, and wilt forgive me.

Ctes. Thou hast pluck'd

The poor disguise of hatred from my soul,
And made me feel how shallow is the wish
Of vengeance. Could I die to save thee!

CLEMANTHE rushes forward.

Clem. Hold!

Let me support him—stand away—indeed
I have best right, although ye know it not,
To cling to him in death.

Ion. This is a joy

I did not hope for—this is sweet indeed.—
Bend thine eyes on me!

Clem. And for this it was

Thou wouldst have wean'd me from thee! Could'st thou think

I would be so divorced?

Ion. Thou art right, Clemanthe,—

It was a shallow and an idle thought!

'Tis past; no show of coldness frets us now;
No vain disguise, my love. Yet thou wilt think
On that which, when I feign'd I truly said—
Wilt thou not, sweet one?

Clem. I will treasure all.

Irus. I bring you glorious tidings.—Ha! no joy
Can enter here.

Ion. Yes—is it as I hope?

Irus. The pestilence abates.

Ion. (Springs to his feet.) Do ye not hear?
Why shout ye not?—ye are strong—think not of me;

Hearken! the curse my ancestry has spread O'er Argos is dispell'd—Agenor, give
This gentle youth his freedom, who hath brought Sweet tidings that I shall not die in vain—
And Medon! cherish him as thou hast one
Who dying blesses thee;—my own Clemanthe!
Let this console thee also—Argos lives—
The offering is accepted—all is well! (Dies.)
